THREE CENTS

Truce Sought In A.F.L. Split As Roosevelt, Lewis Confer

New Deal Is Believed Seeking to Forestall Labor Division.

Council's Hearings Flouted by Rebels

Green Denies Industrial Unionism Real Issue, Doubts Compromise.

By Felix Bruner.

President Roosevelt took a hand yesterday in the squabble that threatens to split the American Federation of Labor when he conferred with John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and head of the rebel faction of the federation.

The President also conferred with Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, and with conciliators of the Labor Department. These conferences followed a similar meeting with William Green, federation president, Wednesday.

Another caller at the White House was Senator Robinson, of Arkansas. He went almost immediately from the conference to lunch with Green at a Connecticut avenue restaurant.

It thus became apparent the Administration, working secretly behind the scenes, is attempting to keep intact the front of organized labor.

Following a day of conferences by the A. F. of L. executive council, Green said: "We are hoping to find a way out." The possible way out, however, was far from clear, Green admitted.

This was particularly true because Lewis, as head of the miners, refused to appear before the council at its invitation to give his reasons for refusing to dissolve the Committee for Industrial Organization, the insurgent organization that has brought about the split. Representatives of the textile workers also refused to appear.

Today the executive council will meet again to await appearance of representatives of other unions affiliated with the C. I. O., which is working at cross purposes with the parent organization in its attempts to organize industrial unions in the steel, rubber, automobile and other industries. While none of the A. F. of L. officials have any expectation that any of the union officials will appear, the council is waiting through the ceremony of sitting and awaiting their appearance.

To Act Next Week.

This procedure is expected to continue until the middle of next week, when the council is expected to take some action. Although there have been some positive predictions that it will end the split, possibly a compromise, resulting in the federation remaining intact.

President Roosevelt is interested in preventing a quarrel within organized labor, in view of the trouble between labor and employers and especially in view of the announcement of the iron and steel industry that it will resist unionization of its employees by side organizations. Labor also is expected to play an unusually important part in the Presidential campaign.

After his meeting with the President, Lewis said Mr. Roosevelt sent for him, but insisted the meeting was for discussion of labor's support in the Democratic campaign. He said he did not think the impending split in the federation was "important enough" to discuss.

"I was glad to tell him of the great mass movement of labor for his re-election," Lewis said. "I think the sentiment is almost unparalleled in unanimity. The rank and file of labor is rallying to the President by view of the threats of the steel interests upon our organization movement."

Later Green said that he believed the attacks of the steel companies were a challenge to the Lewis faction and had nothing to do with organized labor generally.

Lewis said it was the "obvious intention" of the steel manufacturers "to foment the laws passed to protect labor and to provoke strikes and violence, rather than to recognize the rights of labor."

Lewis said he believed President Roosevelt took the attitude that labor should reconcile its own differences.

While Green continued to insist that he hoped there was a way to "beat the breach" in the federation ranks, many of the members of the executive council were reported to be continuing to insist that the

12th Dionne Child 'Husky Boy,' Resembles Sisters, Mother Says

Dr. Dafoe Is Absent at Birth; Father Happy at Having Son.

By Lillian Barker.

Callander, Ontario, July 9.—In the same farmhouse—the same room, in fact—where two years ago the Dionne quintuplets arrived to greet an amazed world, another baby was born to Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne at 3:25 o'clock this morning.

The twelfth child of the Canadian backwoods couple is an 8-pound boy—their fourth son. He came into the world, not through a midwife's ministrations, but with benefit of doctor and trained nurse—Dr. Eldor Joyal, of North Bay, and Nurse Della Charette, of Callander. And, to his mother's delight, this newcomer to the Dionne household looks like his miracle sisters, the far-famed quint.

He has the same dark Dionne eyes; the same dark Dionne hair. But unlike the quint of beauties, who started life with the handicap of premature birth and unusual fragility, this youngest of the Dionnes is starting out without any handicaps at all.

The "quint" baby brother is a young husky, who announced his own arrival with a series of lusty cries.

All of which brought forth from Dr. Joyal, a French-Canadian, who during the 3½ hours of labor spoke French with the baby's French-Canadian mother, the exclamation: "Un gros garçon. A big baby! A real bouncer! A really strong and healthy baby!"

Mrs. Dionne, who a few moments previously had refused the chloroform offered her, hearing the lusty birth announcement and the doctor's hearty comment, did some exclaiming on her own account.

"C'est un bon signe! Dieu merci, l'enfant cries fort!" (That's a good sign! Thank God, the child cries loudly!)

After comparing the loud crying with the quints' barely audible whimpering the day of their birth, the 37-year-old mother of a dozen children—one of whom died in infancy, asked, "But what is the baby, a boy or a girl?"

"A boy," replied the physician, who has all the charm and the finesse of the cultured Frenchman, and all the kindness and gentleness of a small-town doctor.

"A very fine boy he is, too, madame. You can be proud of him."

Assisting the nurse, also a French-Canadian, a petite, young and pretty one, too, at the weighing-in process, I saw the baby tip the scales at exactly 8 pounds.

This means that he is the heaviest baby Mrs. Dionne has ever had. His weight is only 5½ pounds less than the collective weight of the quints the day they were born.

So even if the "gros garçon" is not the "scientific curiosity" his 2-year-old sisters are, because of the multiplicity, their premature birth and their early fragility, he is some baby just the same.

Dr. Joyal, the father of four children, pronounced the 1-hour-old baby perfect as he packed his obstetrical bag.

Franco-British Mediterranean Accord Ended

Paris Acts to Gain Favor of Italy in Event of German Attack.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, July 9.—France officially denounced her Mediterranean mutual assistance agreement with Great Britain tonight.

Officials said the government had informed Great Britain and Italy that she considered the arrangement premature and that she would not be bound by it in the event of an Italian attack on the British fleet.

The sanctions were to be lifted July 15 upon recommendation of the League of Nations co-ordinations committee.

France's action, it was indicated, was taken in an attempt to participate in the forthcoming Locarno conference at Brussels, as well as the Dardanelles conversations now in progress at Montreux.

Forwarded to London.

The decision was communicated to London despite repeated declarations by the British foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, that Britain considered the accord good for an indefinite period.

The agreement was reached shortly after the League took sanctions against Italy. It promised French aid and the use of naval bases for the British fleet in the Mediterranean in the event of a clash with Italy.

Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey also were included in the arrangement. French officials said it would be up to these nations to decide whether they also would denounce the accord.

Parley With Italy.

Diplomatic sources declared France had discussed the question with Italy before reaching a decision. They said Italy indicated it France renounced the Mediterranean Agreement, she would send a letter guaranteeing France against German attack as called for in the Locarno Agreement.

Employers in several French cities called upon the government tonight to make good its promise to evacuate strike-besieged factories by using police "without bayonets."

Mrs. Owen's Fiance Arrives; Marriage Likely to Be Today

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 9.—The United States Minister to Denmark went down the bay to meet her fiancé today and after greeting him with a kiss, she sped him to Long Island Sound estate, where they made plans to be married.

Shipboard acquaintances of Capt. George Robde, vice-guard of King Christian X, quoted him as saying he would be married tomorrow to Mrs. Minister Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan and the first woman minister ever to represent this country abroad.

Indications tonight, although unverified by either of the principals, were that the ceremony would take place in the presence of high officials of the State or Nation.

Mrs. Owen, who said the arrangements depended on the plans of "people whom we want to be present," met her fiancé at quarantine in the 40-foot cabin cruiser Now Listen, owned by her son-in-law, Robert Lehman.

She was accompanied by a party of friends and immigration officials. After disposing of immigration formalities, Capt. Robde transferred from the liner Drottningholm to the cruiser, embraced his bride-elect, and then waved a farewell to fellow passengers.

On arriving at the Long Island estate of her son-in-law, who is a relative of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Mrs. Owen was asked if the Governor would perform the ceremony.

"If he wishes to I suppose he can," she replied.

Fannie Hurst, the novelist, will act as matron of honor and Mrs. Owen will be the bride.

Murphy Gets Pay Farmers For Soil Aid, Landon Urges

Conservation Program Is Mapped as Governor, Lowden Confer.

Concentration of Power Scored After Topeka Conference.

By the Associated Press.

Topeka, Kans., July 9.—An agreement that farmers should be paid bounties for soil conserving practices emerged today from a conference between Gov. Alf M. Landon and Frank O. Lowden on 1936 campaign issues.

For more than two hours, the Republican Presidential nominee talked with the veteran Illinois leader.

At the conclusion, Lowden told a press conference they were "agreed" on a farm program, and in their views on concentration of power in Washington and "the awful extravagance in Government, something over which all our people are aroused."

"Will you campaign for Gov. Landon?" Lowden was asked.

"Sure," he replied. "I don't know whether I will travel much, but I will make some speeches."

Lowden added his belief that the outlook for a Landon-Knox victory was "very hopeful" and "improving on our standpoint all the time."

"People believe in him," he said, with a gesture toward Landon.

About farm benefit payments Lowden said:

"We agreed that to get land into legumes or permanent grasses," he replied, "bounties would have to be paid and the country would benefit."

"Would that be a permanent program?" Lowden was asked.

"Oh, yes," he replied, "this time Landon's concurrence was not sought."

Soil Erosion Menace.

Lowden quoted one source as estimating that 100,000,000 acres had been destroyed by soil erosion, 125,000,000 acres were threatened.

"When we consider we have only about 300,000,000 acres being farmed now, and that erosion always goes on at a progressive rate, we realize the seriousness of this menace," Lowden said later at a press conference.

He also discussed the conservation of farm population as well as conservation of the soil. The future of the country depends upon conservation of the farm population.

"I myself am very much concerned over the increasing concentration of power in Washington," Lowden added. "You can't make a great democracy like ours function as it should without maximum local self-government."

"History affords no instance of power completely concentrated in the hands of a few men," he said.

Asked here whether Landon agreed with his views on the concentration of power, Lowden said: "We agreed."

Then he continued:

"We also discussed the awful extravagance in Government, something over which all our people are aroused."

"At least our people were lulled with the feeling of false security that the rich were going to pay. Then it began to dawn on them that the end of all the people must be the end of the country."

"The farm program we've outlined contemplates State administration of the program. The Democrats have turned to that now."

Hopes for Similar Program.

"I hope, because we were first in the field, that the party will go through with a similar program. That would take the farm question out of politics."

August P. Bellmann, arboriculturist at the Missouri Botanical Gardens here, said today that thermometers inserted in tree trunks showed internal temperatures of 74 degrees, just 11 points short of the mark at which they begin to lose their foliage.

Bellmann said he expected internal tree temperatures would rise past the danger point if rains do not fall in six days.

"During the 1934 drought, some trees ran temperatures up to 108," he said.

Government Aid to 3,000,000 Accelerated in Drought Areas

All U. S. Agencies Involved Co-operate in Drive to Help Farmers; Damage Estimates Run as High as $3,000,000,000.

By Sidney Olson.

The Government's swift mobilization to rush to the aid of drought-stricken farmers in 268 counties of nine States shot into high gear yesterday as the sun-scoured bread-basket of the Nation continued to wither in unbroken heat.

The AAA estimated that from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 farmers had suffered losses in the drought. Estimates of damage to crops varied from $200,000,000 to $3,000,000,000.

As all the involved Government agencies co-operated in the drive to speed relief to 204,000 drought-stricken farm families, observers were reminded of the heyday of NRA, as department after department clicked into line in the mobilization.

Late in the day the Resettlement Administration announced a one-year moratorium on $7,000,000 worth of rural rehabilitation loans in the drought area.

About 30,000 families will benefit from this move. Borrowers, who can show they lack cash funds, may participate in the moratorium, which was announced as part of the President's co-ordinated drought-relief program.

The final polish will be placed on this program today at the White House, when the President will confer with Rexford G. Tugwell, Resettlement administrator, and Aubrey Williams, assistant WPA administrator, before departing on his scheduled three-week fishing vacation trip.

The price of flour, steady in Washington, D. C., Atlanta, Boston and New Orleans, began to soar yesterday in such widely scattered points as New York City and Oklahoma City. In New York it was up 70 cents a barrel, according to the United Press. In Kansas, reports said vegetable prices were moving up.

In the Chicago grain pit the price of wheat resumed its advance with July delivery closing at $1.96½ to $1.97½, and prices generally ½ to 1½ higher. Setbacks of the day before were quickly overtaken when word came that from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 acres of Canadian wheat were still in serious danger despite Wednesday's rains. Wheat has advanced.

Sweltering in a heat wave that spread death and destruction through the East and the drought-stricken Middle West, Washington experienced its hottest day since 1900, with the temperature soaring to 104, an all-time high for July 9 here.

In the metropolitan area three were dead of heat disease aggravated by the heat, and late last night the Associated Press reported the Nation's toll from drought and heat for the last three days stood at 223.

The dead in the District and nearby Virginia were:

George H. McCarthy, 74, a retired postal worker, of 3834 Garrison street northwest.

Boyd W. Burke, 55, of 517 South Columbus street, Alexandria, Va.

George Reid, 54, colored dishwasher, of 421 Third street northwest.

Prostrations Numerous.

The list of prostrations grew hourly, and late last night almost a dozen men and women had received treatment in District hospitals. Some of these, in serious condition, remained under observation, while others were sent to their homes.

McCarthy collapsed near the Library of Congress and died in Casualty Hospital. Reid fell while he was at work. He, too, died at Casualty.

Burke was stricken at Columbus and Wolfe streets, Alexandria, as he returned home from work. He was pronounced dead shortly after his arrival at Alexandria Hospital.

As many cities reported shattered heat records, the weather men here gave no promise of relief. Today will be fair and continued warm, the forecasters said last night.

The heat wave was generally extended along the Atlantic Seaboard. It stretched far out to the Nation's "bread basket" in the vast farming areas of the middle West.

Drought Unbroken.

Generally the drought remained unbroken in the stricken areas, the Associated Press reported. Scattered rain brightened the crop picture here and there in half a dozen States, however.

The Dakotas were center of the sun's fiercest attack so far this year. Aberdeen, the hottest spot in America, with an official maximum of 113 degrees.

Iowa, Montana and down-State Illinois saw the mercury climb in many places above the 100-degree mark. Corn and wheat were parched in the fields, and streams and creeks receded from their banks in the hardest-hit spots.

Livestock lay listless in the blistering sun. In many places it was difficult to water them.

Close on the heels of Aberdeen's 113, which drove citizens there into a frenzy, was 108 at New York City where the official weather bureau thermometer registered 102.3 degrees. On Manhattan there were three deaths, one of them a drowning, but in the tenement districts the humidity was low and a slight breeze fanned in last night from the Atlantic.

Newark Record Equalled.

The all-time heat record was equalled in Newark, N. J., where the mercury reached 108 and eight girls were prostrated while working in a single office building. Trenton had 106 degrees, and Philadelphia reported 107.

Thermometers climbed swiftly in Maryland, going beyond the 100-degree mark in many places. So severe was the discomfort in Baltimore, with a temperature of

Roosevelt Aids Hit Duplication In Government

Taxpayers Are Supporting 175,000 Separate Units, Cabinet Reports.

By the United Press.

Five New Deal Cabinet members reported last night to President Roosevelt that American taxpayers were supporting 175,000 separate Federal, State and local governments.

They described the situation as an "almost unlimited chance for confusions, cross purposes and wasted effort," and recommended a government remedy.

The solution, they said, would be permanent organization of the National Resources Committee, a temporary agency created by this administration to study the Nation's natural, economic and human resources.

Wastefulness Charged.

The Cabinet members' recommendation came shortly after statements by Senator Harry F. Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, that overlapping and duplicating New Deal activities were wasteful.

A committee was appointed after his charge to study all Federal agencies to eliminate unnecessary boards and bureaus.

The five signing the current report were Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes, Secretary of War George H. Dean, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

"The National Resources Committee and similar State and local bodies throughout the country," they said, "are organized to study public policies and to assist in co-operative endeavors among the various governmental units."

Capital Not Spared.

The Cabinet members did not spare Washington in their criticism of top-heavy government. After pointing out that the Department of Agriculture and Department of the Interior overlapped somewhat, they said:

"Some departments are directed to do scientific work, others carry out engineering operations, such as building dams or controlling soil erosion. The operations of one department often overlap those of another to some extent; sometimes their policies are in apparent conflict."

"Only by bringing the different programs into a single picture is it possible to find out where the duplications and conflicts are, in order to understand public policies, the National Resources Committee brings together the men in different departments of the Government and in the world of science and engineering to collect into one place the facts that underlie each kind of public work."

Duplications Alleged.

The report said the committee, through its planning committees, in 46 of 48 States, is able to find the expensive "duplications and conflicts" the public is financing with taxes.

The committee, actively headed by Frederic A. Delano, Mr. Roosevelt's uncle, and Charles W. Eliot 2d, co-ordinates work of almost all Federal agencies through its various branches. It has sections assigned to land, water, industrial, urban, scientific, population, technology and transportation studies.

Publicity Experts on U. S. Pay Roll Cut Costs of Farley's Campaign to Re-Elect Roosevelt.

By Franklyn Waltman

DEMOCRATIC Chairman James A. Farley announces that he believes his party can wage this year's Presidential campaign at a cost of not more than $2,000,000—or about the sum spent to elect Franklin D. Roosevelt four years ago. This compares with a budget of about $3,000,000 being set up by the Republicans in behalf of Gov. Alf M. Landon.

WALTMAN.

There are some cynics who believe Mr. Farley will spend as much as the Republicans or more. Indeed, the Democratic chairman displays incredulity about the Republican figure. He is ready to bet that the Republicans will spend much more than $3,000,000 in their effort to beat Mr. Roosevelt.

We make bold to predict that even if the Republicans could collect and spend $10,000,000 for their candidate against Mr. Farley's $2,000,000 it would remain a very one-sided fight as far as the expenditures of money goes—greatly favoring the Democrats. In other words, if the Republicans spend $3,000,000 the Democrats should not need to spend directly for political purposes more than $200,000.

Even before the Democrats spend a cent of their own money they are miles ahead of the Landon camp because they can draw on the Federal Treasury. As an example: Gov. Landon has employed a press representative and a group of technical research workers and advisers. Their salaries must be paid out of the funds collected by the Republican National Committee. They cannot conceivably be charged up to the State of Kansas.

Mr. Roosevelt's press representative gets his check from the United States Treasury. So do most of his technical advisers and research workers. When the President wants data for a campaign speech on the operation of the reciprocal tariff program, he calls on the Secretary of State, who in turn, calls on the chief of that division and regularly employed Government workers compile the needed information.

But when Gov. Landon wants data on how the reciprocal tariff program has worked, he gets in touch with the chief of the Republican research division, who in turn, assigns an expert or two on that subject to dig up the data. Experts cost money and their salaries must come from the Republican war chest.

When Charles Michelson, Democratic publicity director, wants to circulate a defense of a given department he gets the press representative of that department—paid by the Treasury—to prepare the material for him. Indeed, virtually all the army of Government press agents stand ready to work for Mr. Michelson, whether he asks them to do so or not. It is part of their job to defend the Administration and to sing its good words.

But when Alfred H. Kirchhofer, the newly appointed Republican director of publicity, wishes to attack the activities of a Federal department or a New Deal agency, he must employ a smart young man to go out after the material and write it up—and he must pay the smart young man with party funds.

But these illustrations really represent but chicken feed in Democratic campaign expenses paid by the Treasury. Virtually every Federal official and employee who received his job since the New Deal started will feel obligated to do what he or she can to assure the President's re-election.

Thus Cabinet officers will take time from their official duties to make stump speeches. A small army of American diplomats are in this country or on their way home to participate in the campaign, meanwhile continuing to draw their salaries.

Chairman Farley after August 1 will be separated from the Federal pay roll and Frank Murphy, American High Commissioner to the Philippines, also has been given a leave of absence without pay to help the Democratic cause by running for Governor of Michigan. But there is no evidence yet that these diplomats and other Federal officials will have their pay taken from them while they are campaigning for Mr. Roosevelt.

And of course the subordinate Federal officials and jobholders have no fear of being reprimanded by their superiors when they take a few days—or a few weeks—off from official work to lend a hand in the Democratic campaign. Whereas on registration and election days the local Republican organizations will have to pay party workers to get the voters out, the task will be done for the Democrats—without further remuneration—by Federal jobholders. And the New Deal has more jobholders than any other Federal Administration has had—even if the 3,500,000 relief workers are eliminated.

Psychologically, the Democrats also hold the advantage. A campaign address by a Cabinet officer will attract more attention and receive more publicity, because of his prestige, than an address just as good by a Republican without office, even if he

Adequate Tariff To Aid Farmers Urged by Borah

Senator Makes Attack on Monopoly in Opening Re-election Drive.

By the Associated Press.

Nampa, Idaho, July 9.—Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, opened his campaign for re-election today with a call for an "adequate" farm tariff.

He decried importation of commodities, struck at monopoly, demanded Congress "assume the duty of regulating the money" and warned against the danger of America being drawn into another war.

The address, delivered to 1,000 farmers, did not touch on personal politics—although it followed by less than 24 hours the veteran statesman's announcement for re-election.

"Lasting" farm prosperity will never come, he asserted, "until the American market for farm products is protected by an adequate tariff." "During the first four months of this year there was imported 10,500,000 pounds of pork and many millions of pounds of other farm products."

"In 1929 it was said that the American farmer was producing too much—was too industrious. In my opinion, there never has been a time when there has been produced more than the human race can consume."

Then he added: "Monopoly must be destroyed and Congress must assume the duty of regulating the money, and we have adequate power under the Constitution, without amending it, to do these things."

Four Dead in Alabama Of Infantile Paralysis

Montgomery, Ala., July 9 (AP)—The death toll of Alabama's outbreak of infantile paralysis stood at four today, and the number of cases was increased to 93 as health authorities redoubled efforts to check the spread of the disease.

wishes to be a Cabinet officer some day.

Of course there is nothing novel about this. The President seeking re-election always has had an advantage over his challenger, just as an incumbent Senator can use his franking privilege to the detriment of his opponent. But when prospective campaign expenses are compared it is pertinent to remember that the people, through the Treasury, and without their consent, contribute to the expenses of the incumbent party.

So it happened in 1932 when Herbert Hoover sought re-election. But, as in his case, this advantage necessarily is not sufficiently great to assure victory to the incumbent. It seems the people develop their own ideas about candidates, irrespective of the money spent or the propaganda circulated.

They Direct G.O.P. Campaign Publicity

A. H. KIRCHHOFFER.

John Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, yesterday announced appointments of A. H. Kirchhofer, Buffalo editor, as director of publicity for the Landon-Knox campaign forces. Hill Blackett, Chicago advertising man, will serve as director of public relations.

to the constitution amid a bitter political dispute.

Meanwhile, the Kansas Legislature completed Landon's special session program amid bitter political wrangling.

A charge by Senator Joe McDonald, Democrat, that Landon was "crucifying the poor and needy on a cross of booze" touched off the Senate political dispute.

Brought to his feet by McDonald's words, Senator Dallas Knapp, Republican floor leader, said "We have been listening to little but tirades and insults since yesterday."

"These remarks of the Senator are an insult on the fair name of Kansas," Knapp continued, standing at his desk in the front row. "Three-fourths of the States of this Nation have not contributed as much toward the care of the poor and needy during this emergency as has Kansas, when wealth and resources are compared."

The Senate by a 35-to-1 ballot, voted final acceptance of two constitutional amendments designed to provide full Kansas participation in Federal social security laws.

Noon Monday was fixed as the official closing hour of the special session which convened Tuesday. Before the last gavel fell, McDonald took the floor again to say "there is no such thing as a balanced Kansas budget. There is one thing I can say for Alf Landon, McDonald continued. 'He has never said that he balanced the budget. The Kansas balanced budget is a myth of the newspapers.'"

Lowden, long identified with the so-called equation for farm relief plan and an advocate of soil conservation, was met upon his arrival today by Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas; Representative Frank Carlson, of Kansas; and Clyde Miller, Topeka business man, prominent in the pre-convention Landon activities.

cussed politics with Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, majority leader.

"We discussed a number of matters in connection with the campaign," Robinson said. "Both of us are well pleased with the results of the Philadelphia convention. The campaign is progressing in a very satisfactory way."

Robinson said he would return to Arkansas in about three days to take up his senatorial campaign. He said he expected to be re-elected by a very large majority over all his opposition. He said that later in the campaign he expected to make radio talks and public speeches in behalf of President Roosevelt.

Shotgun Slugs Clew in Killing Of Lawmaker

Chauffeur, Brother Sought in Chicago Slaying of John M. Bolton.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 9.—The two shotgun slugs that stopped his 60-mile-an-hour race against gangland death were the only clues tonight to the men who slew John M. Bolton, the Illinois State representative who wanted to license betting on the races in Chicago.

The slugs and the wadding which went with them, were taken from Bolton's shattered head after his driverless automobile careened into a light post on a West Side street early today.

The killers, who had sped along beside him waiting their chance, never slackened their speed when their job was done. They rounded a corner on two wheels and disappeared.

May Learn Type of Gun.

From the slugs and wadding police might learn the type of gun, and its gauge. But there the trail ended.

There were many rumors that Bolton—sponsor of a bill to license race betting establishments in Chicago—had died because of his own interests in gambling; that he was killed because he defended his friends from Capone mobsters who tried to "muscle in" on their territory.

To all these the police answer was the same:

"We have no way of knowing."

Recognize Killers.

Two things were known: First, the legislature was on the verge of passing a bill to license race betting; second, he had been organized had his license betting bill gone through; and second, he recognized his killers because he tried to escape them.

Six persons witnessed the end of Bolton's last ride. Although the details differed, the execution was swift and exact. The bill to license race betting was the last thing Bolton saw as he lay on the steps of his home in December.

Police concentrated their search on two missing men: Bolton's brother, "Red," a former convict, and the dead man's chauffeur, Hyman Kischner, who last night was not at his usual place behind the wheel of the legislator's car.

They were also looking for persons familiar with Bolton's nightly routine, a drive from home to a political conference spot at South Ashland avenue and Taylor street.

Dionne Baby

metrical instruments and prepared to return to his home in North Bay, a town 12 miles distant.

"The fortitude of the baby's mother was something to marvel at," the doctor said.

"Her condition," he told Mme. Dionne's anxious husband, who had torn himself from his wife's bedside to follow the physician to the door, "is excellent. Nor have I ever seen a more radiant and joyful mother."

At that assurance, the look of apprehension that had clouded Oliva Dionne's face from the moment travail began, vanished as if by magic. Walking to the kitchen, he confessed to me in French, "Those words of Dr. Joyal certainly have eased my mind."

"I was so worried about Elzire. Not that her health hasn't been good for the past several months. It has. Even when people were saying and writing that her condition was alarming—people who haven't laid eyes on her for months, mind you—she was telling me she felt better than at any time since the birth of Yvonne, Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Marie."

"Just the same, the last few weeks have been very, very hard on her. But you were in the house. You know what she went through."

I certainly did know what Mme. Dionne has been through.

I knew she and her husband together had kept a day-and-night vigil over their five older children, all of whom had just recently recovered from attacks of measles.

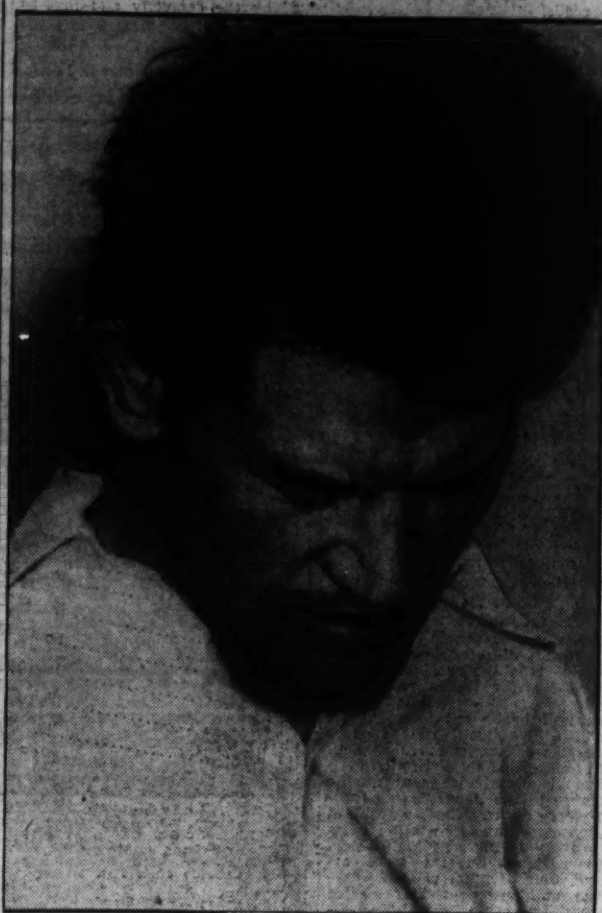

I knew, too, that the much-publicized mother, who is so timid, so shy, so averse to publicity, had secluded herself in the Dionne farmhouse, behind locked doors and with shades drawn to prevent reporters, tourists and neighbors from getting even a glimpse of her.

Wants Quiet.

"If only I could have been left alone, in quiet and peace," she said to me yesterday as we sat together in her darkened living room. "Having a child is such a personal and such a sacred thing. That's why I can't bear to talk for publication about the event before it happens."

"That's why I have been a shut-in for so long. You have been here five weeks and you have seen for yourself how tourist cars lined the driveway between our house and the hospital where my quintuplet daughters continue to be a daily and Sunday tourist attraction.

"Why, only last Sunday I heard there were nearly 3,000 people here to see the children. So how could I venture out? I felt like a prisoner."

"But very soon now the baby will be here. And before long we can both go out in the back yard and hide behind that 8-foot fence Oliva has had built in order that we may all have at least a little back-yard privacy."

"The older children can play behind the fence, and the little new baby can take his daily airings and sunbaths there."

Just yesterday madame had said all this to me, and today, entering the birthroom with Oliva Dionne, I discovered the baby, for whom the plans had been made, wrapped in a pink blanket on the foot of the bed, a bundle his mother was regarding very intently.

Her eyes still on the bundle, she slipped beneath the pillow a violet-covered rosary to which she had been clinging and asked her husband to hand her the baby.

Resembles Yvonne.

"I want to see what he looks like, whom he resembles," she explained.

The baby's proud papa placed the child in his impatient mother's arms and after a quick close-up of the little one, the mother said:

"He looks like the 'juneles'—her word for the quintuplets."

"But he looks more like Yvonne than any of the others. Don't you think so, Oliva?"

Oliva thought so, and his wife enthused:

"Isn't he plump though—I'm overjoyed that he is a 'gros garcon'."

But in an aside he added: "But I wasn't surprised to learn I had a son. Don't you remember the day you came to Callander. I told you I would have only one baby this time, and that I was sure it would be a boy."

I remembered distinctly the confidence with which madame—she isn't given to confidences—had honored me. I further remembered she had added that both she and her husband would be happy to have another boy in the family.

And there, covered in her arms, was the son she had wanted and expected, and beside her, bed-wet the father, thrilled, too, as he stallingly admitted that the baby is a boy.

That was the way I left them—M. and Mme. Oliva Dionne, rejoicing over the quintuplets' little brother, just as if he had been their first, instead of their twelfth baby.

And the baby, just as if he knew what it was all about, stopped sucking the thumb he had plunged into his mouth, fanned tiny fists in the air and blinked up at his parents in the lamplight.

Farmer Guilty In Threat to Kill Farrand's Son

Is Convicted in 5 Minutes of Demanding $5,000 in Letter.

Deliberating but five minutes, a jury in District Court late yesterday found Jesse J. Miller, Thurmont, Md., farm hand, guilty of sending a letter to Mrs. Stephen McK. Farrand, wife of a special assistant to the Attorney General, threatening harm to her son, 14-month-old Peter Farrand, unless she paid $5,000.

Miller, who is 22, appeared apathetic throughout his trial. He went to court unshaven and unkempt. He had refused to have himself shaved or his hair cut while he was being held in District Jail. Throughout the trial he buried his head in his hands, his elbows resting on his knees, and even when he was called upon to stand while the jury was being sworn, deputy marshals found it difficult to hold him erect.

Case Rested Before Noon.

Presenting the prosecution case in rapid-fire order, Assistant United States Attorney Roger Robb rested his case before the noon recess of court. Defense attorneys then made an attempt to show that Miller was highly emotional and was frequently absent from home. On these occasions, they said, he slept in the woods adjacent to his home.

Seven prosecution witnesses related stories to the jury that unfolded the closest details of the alleged plot by which Miller hoped to obtain the $5,000. They pictured the morning when Mrs. Farrand received a crudely scrawled letter which demanded the $5,000.

The letter stated, "This letter is very important. It is up to you to decide what to do about it. This is what I want from you and nothing else. I want you to pay me $5,000 thousand dollars ransom money or it will mean the life of your little boy Peter. We know all about you and know you have the money. Your man is working at Solicitor general's office and we have found out all about you, and your family. We will give you a week from the day you get this letter to send the money when I tell you in this letter. Send the money in care of Orville Miller, Blue Mountain, Md., Thurmont, Md. Now whatever you wanted to do. But if you don't send five thousand dollars we are going to take the life of your boy Peter. Keep this from the cops and pay us the money or you be sorry. If you don't send us the money I said its gonna be the end of your little boy Peter."

"Your home is in California. Don't think this letter is from crazy fool but remember we will get your little boy Peter if you don't pay us."

Mrs. Farrand turned the letter over to special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who arrested Orville Miller, a brother of Jesse, the next day, June 10. After questioning he was released and Jesse, found sleeping in a graveyard several days later, was arrested. His fingerprints were found on the letter and samples of his handwriting were identified by Justice agents as being identical with handwriting specimen taken from him in the jail.

In addition, Jesse admitted he had sent the letter, though he told the agents: "Prove what you have on me. I have been in court before and sometimes they could prove things and sometimes they couldn't."

During all the testimony, Jesse Miller appeared uninterested in the case, though the penalty for violation of the Lindbergh law is a sentence of from 4 to 20 years and a $5,000 fine.

Robb ridiculed the defense plea that Miller was of unsound mind. He produced Dr. John Gilbert, head of the psychiatric department of Gallinger Hospital, who said Miller was defective mentally, but was not insane.

Defense Attorneys Fred J. Icenhower and W. K. Teepe announced last night they were undetermined upon their next step. They said they had been to the District Jail to interview Miller, but had been unable to get any information from him. Icenhower said Miller refused to talk at all, and would not even permit a psychiatrist summoned by him to talk to him.

He cited as one of the man's idiosyncrasies his refusal to be either shaved or to have his hair cut, and his refusal to join others in the jail in the daily exercise periods. It was necessary to use force to bathe him, it also was asserted.

Roosevelt Leaves For N. Y. Tonight

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt put in one of his busiest days of the summer yesterday winding up affairs of State to start on a vacation trip.

Tonight he will leave for New York City, where he will dedicate the huge Triborough Bridge tomorrow morning. From New York he will go to Hyde Park for a few days before starting a two-week vacation cruise off the coast of Maine and Nova Scotia.

North Haven, Me., July 9 (AP).—The schooner-yacht Seawanna, bearing President Roosevelt's three sons up the coast for a rendezvous next week with their father, put into this little island port today.

The ship's company, Capt. Elden Colbeth, James Franklin, Jr., and John Roosevelt, and the vessel's only "hand," Joseph Emmerz, seaman, anchored on the opposite side of the island from Pulpit Harbor, where James previously indicated President Roosevelt would join the party early next week.

Swiss Lift Italian Bans. Berne, Switzerland, July 9 (AP).—The Swiss Federal Council, the nation's executive body, tonight ordered the removal on July 13 of economic and financial sanctions applied by Switzerland against Italy.

Work to Begin On Occoquan Unit This Week

$45,000 Available From U. S. for Women's Department.

Work on the new women's department buildings of the District Reformatory at Occoquan, Va., will begin this week, according to an announcement yesterday by Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent.

A congressional appropriation of $45,000 for the buildings became available July 1. The appropriation, according to Barnard, will not meet the entire cost of the project, but will be sufficient for about half of the proposed construction.

The new buildings will include six dormitories, a dining hall and kitchen, an administration building, a recreation hall and a work building.

Because of crowded conditions in the women's department unit, little educational work among the prisoners has been done. Barnard hopes to institute an educational program as soon as room is available.

There are about 90 inmates of the women's department, in charge of Mrs. Lillian Holland.

Alexandria Woman Injured in Accident

Mrs. Parmalee Janion, 49, of Telegraph road, Alexandria, Va., was injured yesterday in an accident involving two automobiles and a St. Louis-bound Greyhound bus. The accident occurred on Duke street near Diagonal road in Alexandria.

Mrs. Janion was treated at Alexandria Hospital for possible injuries to the neck.

Arkansans End Farm Walkout, Union Reports

Pay Increases Are Claimed; Officers Deny Strike Ever Existed.

By the Associated Press.
Memphis, Tenn., July 9.—The east Arkansas farm laborers' strike, marked by charges of floggings and violence which prompted a Federal investigation, ended today.

Even as the Southern Tenant Farmers Union announced the walkout over, claiming it a success, peace officers of the affected area, embracing Crittenden, St. Francis and Cross counties denied a strike ever existed.

The strike call, issued May 23, originally involved cotton choppers, but was expanded to include sympathetic sharecroppers and tenant farmers. Wages of $1.50 for a ten-hour day were demanded, instead of the 75 cents the union claimed was paid.

$1.25 in Some Areas.

H. L. Mitchell, secretary of the S. T. F. U., claimed today that over a wide area, we won an average wage of $1 per day for labor, and "in some counties we won $1.25 for a ten-hour day."

The strike, he said, not only brought higher wages for thousands, but demonstrated "that Negro and white workers in the cotton fields have become aware of their common interests, and are willing to get together and fight for them."

The union said the strikers "refused to resort to violence" against "the violence of the planters and their political aids."

"The strike is only the beginning of the struggle of the disinherited to come into their own—we appeal for continued aid in this struggle," said the union.

"It's comical," commented Sheriff Curdin when informed of Mitchell's announcement. "There hasn't been a strike. Farm labor has been plentiful. No planter has been handicapped."

Also Denies Strike.

Sheriff C. M. Stacy of Cross County likewise denied a strike ever existed there, and said "there isn't anything to Mitchell's announcement."

Similar expressions were made by officers and planters of St. Francis County.

Still pending are the charges by Willie Sue Blagden, 23-year-old Memphis social worker, and the Rev. Claude C. Williams, of Little Rock, that they were flogged at Earle when they went there to investigate the purported death of Frank Weems, 40, a colored sharecropper, from a "beating."

Attorney General Cummings sent a special assistant into the area to investigate the reported floggings and violence. His report has not been made public.

Ethiopians Battle Italians, Cut Rails

Rome, July 9 (AP).—An official communique announced tonight that "bandits" had cut the Addis Ababa-Djibouti Railway line less than 30 miles from the capital, fighting all night with Italian troops before they were dispersed.

The incident occurred last Monday night, the communique asserted.

Intending to loot two trainloads of provisions, the official report said, the Ethiopians attacked the railway between Akaki and Moggio. In addition to tearing up the rails, they cut telegraph and telephone lines.

Italian detachments rushed to the spot from the garrison at Las Addas and battled the Ethiopians until dawn, when reinforcements arrived from Addis Ababa.

Two Convicts Caught.

Carson City, Nev., July 9 (AP).—Two of four convicts, who escaped from the Nevada State Penitentiary near here last night, were captured by prison guards today. Captured were Richard L. Carlson, 32, and George Schrader, 46, serving robbery sentences.

Drought Damage Mounting in Western States

U. S. Presses Drought Aid

vanced about 20 cents a bushel since drought began to ruin wheat on a wide scale a month ago.

Corn can still be saved by rains in the next seven days, the authorities hold, although the crop estimates fall daily in expected value. The Resettlement Administration's moratorium yesterday was the latest in the long series of emergency announcements that have stemmed from the Interstate Commerce Commission, the AAA, the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, the WPA and other agencies involved in the struggle to aid the drought-stricken farmers.

It complements the plans to put 55,000 farmers to work as fast as possible on jobs paying them $15 per week until winter; the Resettlement Administration's plan to spend $393,000 in subsistence grants in six States, where they are already caring for 70,000 farm families by rehabilitation loans, and ICC's announced emergency rates in-and-out of drought areas for farmers who seek to ship cattle away to feeding regions.

The AAA has softened restrictions of the soil conservation program to permit farmers to continue receiving benefits while salvaging crops for livestock feeding.

The Associated Press reported that Senator Elmer Benson, of Minnesota, has started a drought-area inspection tour after stating he felt Washington authorities weren't sufficiently impressed with the drought's seriousness.

In New York, State Agriculture Commissioner Peter Ten Eyck called a conference for tomorrow to discuss the possibilities of a milk and foodstuff scarcity.

In North Dakota, Gov. Walter Welford said he would offer a State drought and pest insurance measure for the Legislature's next session.

Here, Aubrey Williams announced that Gov. Tom Berry of South Dakota would arrive today for a series of conferences with the Inter-parliamentary Drought Committee. Williams, as acting chief of the WPA, said the work program would be spread to the Southern States, with 20,000 additional jobs created for farmers in North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, Georgia and Alabama.

Fears of dairy farmers that the prices of 5,000,000 calf skins produced on dairy farms this year would be affected adversely were assuaged when the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation assured them that Government purchases of drought cattle would be held to the minimum and that the hides would not be dumped on the market until after disposal of the 1934 purchases.

In the meantime speculation has begun on the amount the drought-relief program will cost the Government this year. Estimates are naturally impossible thus far, authorities hold, and the only key to the situation is in the fact that Congress appropriated $520,000,000 for drought relief in May, 1934, and of that sum $500,000,000 was spent. This drought should not cost that much, many sources hold, unless the corn crop, thus far holding up surprisingly well, also is burned out. Then the cost will zoom upward at a terrific rate, they expect.

The emergency list of drought counties, now standing at 288 in nine States, probably will be increased shortly, it was indicated by members of the drought committee.

These counties are those where relief activities are deemed necessary. Relief work by the WPA, special RA grants, and the cattle-purchasing activities of the AAA will be concentrated in these counties. ICC special round-trip rates for feeder cattle also will apply only in such counties.

Morgan Will Sail If Doctors Permit

New York, July 9 (AP).—Only his doctors stand today between J. P. Morgan and his first trans-Atlantic voyage in his yacht Corsair in three years.

America's most legendary titan of finance is taking all orders from his doctors, but sources close to him indicated he was optimistic over getting a favorable answer within a week or two.

Morgan's wish is to reach the British Channel at least a week in advance of the opening of the grouse shooting season in Scotland on August 12. There were reports today he might make a southern cruise in the yacht but well informed sources made clear the voyage to Europe is virtually certain if the doctors approve.

Morgan is rapidly recovering from his attack of neuritis and is now doing some walking at his Glen Cove estate although only a week ago he was taken off a special car from Massachusetts on a wheel chair.

Jones Suggests Merger of Two Railroad Lines

RFC Chief Says New System Would Stretch From Denver to Coast.

By the Associated Press.

A suggestion that two railroads—the Western Pacific and the Denver & Rio Grande Western—merge into a new system stretching from Denver to the West Coast, was advanced yesterday by Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Both roads are indebted to the RFC and both are in process of reorganization.

A reorganization plan for the Western Pacific now is pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission and the D. & R. G. W. is expected to submit one shortly.

The RFC has been approached for assistance in both reorganizations.

Uses Advantages.

Asked at his press conference whether the RFC would advance funds to bring about a merger of the lines Jones replied:

"I think the corporation would go a good deal further in helping a reorganization that brought out one strong system than a reorganization that brought out two weak ones."

At a recent conference here with security interests and management representatives of the D. & R. G. W., Jones said he suggested that a merger with the Western Pacific was "probably a desirable solution" for financial problems confronting the two roads.

The possibility was discussed, he said, of having the new system owned jointly by the Missouri Pacific, which already is holder of 50 per cent control in the D. & R. G. W., and the Burlington, which would purchase a half interest in the proposed new set-up.

Jones said, however, it was not known whether the Burlington would be interested. He added that the security holders and management spokesmen of the D. & R. G. W. "all seemed to think a merger would be desirable, but doubted whether it could be done easily at this time."

For himself, Jones advanced the opinion that "while both roads are in reorganization, it would be a good time to do the job."

15 Hurt in Riots In Camden Strike

Camden, N. J., July 9 (AP).—Fifteen persons were injured and a similar number arrested today in renewed disturbances of the strike at the R. C. A. Manufacturing Co. plant.

The riot was precipitated when an official of the company announced that the workers' three-week-old strike was a "closed issue."

Turmoil broke out immediately. Along a five-block front strikers attacked workers, bombarding them with paint-filled eggs. Seeds of the principal disturbance was at the entrance to the Pennsylvania Railroad ferry docks. There a group of workers, waiting to cross the Delaware River to Philadelphia, clashed with strikers. Several were arrested, four of them women.

The announcement that started the outbreak came from E. T. Hamilton, vice president of the company in charge of labor. He said the strike was considered a "closed issue" by the company and that 80 per cent of the workers had returned to their jobs.

Earlier in the day John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, issued a statement pledging support of his organization to the United Electrical and Radio Workers Union, which is sponsoring the strike.

The Professor thought it was lemonade!

IT WAS a tall refreshing drink—so delicious and so smooth tasting. The Professor had heard someone at the party mention "Tom Collins," but he never got names straight.

Everyone else enjoyed it, too, because Fleischmann's Gin was used in the mixing.

Any guest likes a "Tom Collins" when it is made with Fleischmann's Gin. Even the Professor... although he insists to this day on calling it a "Tom Fleischmann."

FLEISCHMANN'S GIN enhances the delicate tang of the fresh fruit juice in a Tom Collins—never overpowers it. Fleischmann distills it from American grain in one continuous process. This time-honored American method produces a smoother gin especially suited to the distinctive American taste.

Waiting for the Early Returns

The Washington Post... and 71 Other Leading Newspapers All Over the Country... Will Publish Simultaneously this Sunday the Results of the First AMERICA SPEAKS Landon-Roosevelt Poll.

AND NOT ONLY WILL Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Farley be interested in the results of the first AMERICA SPEAKS Landon-Roosevelt poll... so will practically every citizen of voting age in the country, Republican and Democrat alike.

We know... from the results of previous AMERICA SPEAKS polls, taken among voters from every section of the country... that as far back as February, 1934, that month's poll indicated that President Roosevelt would have been re-elected with a majority of 69 per cent of the total popular vote had the election been held at that time.

We know that during the past 28 months, since that time, the President's popularity with the voters has shifted from month to month... dropping as low as 50.5 per cent in September, 1935... climbing back to 55.8 per cent in June, 1936.

We know that the final poll before the Republican and Democratic nominating conventions, last month, gave any G. O. P. opponent of President Roosevelt only 9 States and 89 electoral votes out of a possible 531.

1936 Political Scorecard in Tomorrow's Post

TOMORROW'S WASHINGTON POST will carry a 1936 election chart... 10 1/4 inches wide and 17 inches deep... on which AMERICA SPEAKS readers may keep up-to-the-minute figures, from month to month throughout the campaign, on the relative standings of the two major party candidates. On this chart will be found tabulated the percentage of the popular vote polled by Herbert Hoover and President Roosevelt, by States, in the 1932 election; the number of electoral votes of each State; the standing of President Roosevelt against ANY G. O. P. candidate as indicated by the January and June, 1936, AMERICA SPEAKS polls; and columns left for the election fan to fill in on the July, August, September, October and November AMERICA SPEAKS polls, with a final column for the actual results of the election itself. Don't fail to get your copy of the 1936 AMERICA SPEAKS election chart in tomorrow's Washington Post.

But we do NOT know how the nomination of Gov. Landon of Kansas has affected the voting sentiments of the people of the Nation. For, up to this time, AMERICA SPEAKS ballots have quizzed the electorate only on the strength of President Roosevelt against an unnamed G. O. P. opponent.

Will Landon gain ground for the G. O. P. in some States, pull them over into the Republican column, perhaps? And if so, how many? Will his nomination prove a vote-loser for the Republicans in other States? In what sections of the country will his greatest strength, his greatest weakness, show?

These are some of the questions that will be answered in the results of the latest AMERICA SPEAKS poll... to be released in the columns of 72 leading newspapers throughout the Nation this Sunday. Millions of Republicans and Democrats, Sunday morning, will be talking over... and arguing over... these latest AMERICA SPEAKS figures.

In Washington, they will be published exclusively in The Washington Post.

B. & O. Revises Staff in Shift Of Divisions

Executives Moved as Two Offices of Carrier Are Consolidated.

Changes and appointments of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad's operating department, affecting Eastern lines, were announced yesterday by C. W. Galloway, vice president of operation and maintenance.

The changes will become effective July 15.

Included in revisions are extension of the Maryland district to include the Monongah division, with F. G. Hopkins continuing as general superintendent, and extension of the Pennsylvania district to embrace the Wheeling area. J. M. Scott, general superintendent at Wheeling, W. Va., will be transferred to Pittsburgh in charge of the enlarged Pennsylvania district to succeed E. A. Peck, Pittsburgh superintendent for many years, who is retiring after 40 years' service with the line.

Position of general superintendent at Wheeling will be abolished. H. R. Laughlin, who has been superintendent of the Cumberland district, with headquarters at Cumberland, Md., will become a member of the staff of C. W. Van Horn, general manager of Eastern lines at Baltimore.

Charles M. Shriver, superintendent of the Baltimore division, will succeed Laughlin at Cumberland, while H. F. Wyatt, assistant superintendent of the Baltimore division, will be advanced to superintendent of that area.

John Edwards, Jr., division engineer of the Monongah division, will become assistant superintendent of the Baltimore division. H. L. Exley, of the staff of the engineer maintenance of way, Baltimore, will be made division engineer at Grafton, succeeding Edwards.

Romoser Is Dead; Lutheran Cleric

Bronxville, N. Y., July 9 (AP).—Dr. George August Romoser, Lutheran educator and clergyman, who has been president of Concordia College since 1918, died suddenly today of heart disease. He was 66.

He went to Concordia as a professor in 1915 and was made president three years later. He was national vice president of the English Lutheran Missouri Synod from 1912-1915, and editor of the Lutheran Witness in 1914.

He was born in Baltimore, September 14, 1870, and was graduated from Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, in 1892. He was a member of the faculty of Concordia College, Conover, N. C., from 1892 to 1900, and was president in 1901. He was pastor of St. Andrew's Lutheran Church, Detroit, from 1900 to 1902, and of Grace Lutheran Church, Cleveland, from 1912 to 1914.

R. B. G. Hardison, Realty Dealer, Dies

Robert Bibb Glenn Hardison, 36, son of former Judge and Mrs. Robert Bibb Hardison, of this city, died Wednesday night at Garfield Hospital after a long illness.

Associated with M. & B. Warren, Inc., and H. L. Rust Co. for 18 years, Hardison was well known among real estate dealers.

Hardison was born in Central City, Ky. His body will be sent here for burial. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Hardison is survived by his parents; one sister, Mrs. Eugene Coyot, Jr., and one brother, Charles O. Hardison, of Indianapolis, Ind.

Henry Wright Dies; Was Housing Expert

Newton, N. J., July 9 (AP).—Henry Wright, professor of town planning at Columbia University, and nationally known architect and housing expert, died here today after a short illness at the age of 58.

A fellow of the American Institute of Architects, Wright was born in Kansas and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1901.

He collaborated in the planning of such developments as Sunnyside, Queens (N. Y. C.); Radburn, N. J.; Chatham Village, Pittsburgh, and the Federal resettlement project at Greenbrook, N. J. Wright is survived by his widow, of New York and Hackettstown, N. J., and four children.

Nonagenarian Dies

James Buchanan Wimer, 91, who died yesterday at his home, 1922 Belmont road, will be buried at 10 a. m. tomorrow at the Belmont road address by Dr. Herbert Scott Smith, of St. Margaret's Church.

Mr. Wimer, who was born in Philadelphia and came here 80 years ago, had been closely identified with the real estate development of Washington, especially that of the northwest section. Twenty years ago he retired from business. At the time of his death he was making his home with a daughter, Miss Marie E. Wimer.

He attended President Lincoln's inaugural ball and was fond of telling stories of that period. The night the President was assassinated at Ford's Theater, Mr. Wimer was attending a performance at the old National Theater with Miss Mary Molan, of Philadelphia, who later became his bride. He frequently recalled how quietly and somberly the crowd left the National upon learning of the fate of President Lincoln.

For a number of years Mr. Wimer was a member of the board of directors of the National Metropolitan Bank. He was also a senior vestryman at St. Margaret's Church.

His wife died in 1916 and a daughter, Miss Martha E. Wimer, who taught French in the Washington public schools for 30 years, died last year.

Survivors are the daughter with whom he lived, an interior decorator with a business establishment on Connecticut avenue; another daughter, Mrs. James Rohrer, of Richmond, Va., and a son, Albert Wimer, of Flint, Mich.

The funeral service tomorrow will be followed by private burial in Congressional Cemetery.

Louisa Whelpley Rites Set Today

Funeral service for Louisa R. Whelpley, 81, lifetime Washington resident, will be held at 2 p. m. today at her home, 9 Eighth street northeast. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Miss Whelpley died Wednesday after a lingering illness. She was the daughter of the late James Whelpley, Washington banker and one time Assistant Treasurer of the United States. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Survivors are two sisters, Mrs. J. W. Ballard, of Greenfield, Mass., and Mrs. Walter Smith, of Washington, and a brother, J. R. Whelpley, of this city.

Bank Will Pay 3 Lieutenants Final Dividend Of Marines Win To Depositors Higher Rank

Chey Chase Institution to Give 20 Per Cent to 4,892 Persons.

The Chevy Chase Savings Bank, closed since March, 1933, will pay a final 20 per cent dividend, to 4,892 depositors during August, it was learned yesterday. The dividend will bring total payments up to 100 per cent.

Checks are being prepared in the office of the receiver, Cary A. Hardee. Although no time has been set for distribution, payment probably will be begun between August 1 and August 15.

A committee of stockholders, headed by Paul Sleman, attorney, co-operated to make the final payment possible, pledging cash to add to the funds already on hand. Waivers of interest by depositors pushed the plan forward.

Assets to Stockholders.

After payment to depositors, the bank's assets will be turned over to stockholders for liquidation.

The bank's quarterly report for the period ended June 30 shows the receiver now has $127,751.69 in cash.

Also made public yesterday by Hardee was the quarterly report of the Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co. Remaining assets were shown as $2,850,197.52 and cash on hand as $1,707,647.23.

The Court of Appeals here recently upheld the receiver's right to collect a 100 per cent assessment against stockholders in the case of the Davis Trust Co. of West Virginia, which had contested the right of the receiver to collect the assessment.

RFC Loan Reduced.

The report shows the receiver has set aside $1,646,370.71 toward repaying a Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan of $2,348,425.97. Through adjustments on interest, however, it was understood the RFC loan had been reduced to approximately $900,000.

The first 50 per cent dividend of the Federal-American was paid to depositors in 1933. Total collections by depositors have so far amounted to $4,177,160.74. At the time of the bank's suspension in March, 1933, the total unsecured deposit liability was $9,332,243.87.

Dr. H. W. Poole, 61, Druggist, Is Dead

Dr. Herbert W. Poole, druggist in Washington and Arlington County for 36 years, died last night at his home at 3234 North Fifth street, Clarendon, Va.

Dr. Poole was born in Herndon, Va., July 30, 1875. He had lived in Arlington County for the last 21 years.

He was graduated from George Washington University with the class of 1900 and entered the drug business in Georgetown, where he remained for 35 years. He continued his profession in Arlington County during the last three years.

Dr. Poole was a member of the Washington Drug Exchange and also a member of the Veteran Druggists Association. He also was a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M.

He is survived by his wife and two sons, John Herbert and Edward Alan Poole.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

G. H. McCarthy Dies; Retired U. S. Employee

George H. McCarthy, 78, retired Government employee and a resident of Washington for nearly 40 years, died at Casualty Hospital early yesterday. Death was caused by heart trouble.

Mr. McCarthy was employed in the Post Office Department for more than 30 years, retiring some time ago. He was a native of Boston, where his body will be sent for burial.

Mrs. Mary D. Hall, Once Teacher, Dead

Mrs. Mary D. Hall, 34, of 28 Pine avenue, Takoma Park, Md., died unexpectedly early yesterday in Columbia Hospital. She was the wife of Marvin F. Hall, engineer of the Hyattsville-Alexandria Gas Co. A native of Hopkinton, Mass., Mrs. Hall was for years a teacher of English at Marblehead and Wellesley (Mass.) High Schools. She came to Washington in 1920. A graduate of Colby College, in Maine, in her undergraduate days she was active in the Sigma Kappa Sorority. Later she founded an alumnae chapter here. Surviving Mrs. Hall are two children, a daughter, Mary Joan, 3, and an infant son. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in Chamber undertaking establishment. The body will be taken to Columbia Falls, Me., for burial.

A Worthless Compromise.

Apparently some difference of opinion exists as to whether it was clever or blundering political strategy for Postmaster General Farley to take a furlough for the duration of the campaign, instead of resigning outright.

Those who judge the wisdom of the action solely in relation to the effect upon votes may be left to carry on an essentially superficial argument. For thoughtful citizens, concerned over the spread of the spoils system throughout the Government service, Mr. Farley's furlough carries a message of quite different character, and sinister significance.

The practice of regarding the office of Postmaster General as a fitting reward for services rendered by the chief patronage dispenser of the party in power is unhappily of long standing. President Roosevelt has made a bad precedent worse by permitting the Postmaster General to retain his position as chairman of the Democratic National Committee and the New York State Committee. Such frank and open treatment of a Cabinet position as a fine "party plum," instead of a full-time responsible administrative job, has had one desirable result. It has focused public attention upon the scandalous abuses involved in using this important office as a convenient vantage point from which to distribute party spoils.

For that reason, President Roosevelt's decision to grant Mr. Farley a furlough instead of facing the issue squarely is greatly to be regretted. A furlough implies that the President endorses the present system and thinks Mr. Farley may with propriety resume his dual role in government and politics when the immediate pressure of campaign duties is relieved.

It does not particularly matter whether Mr. Farley plans to return to the Postoffice Department, in the event of a Democratic victory in November, if the President continues to maintain his present tolerant attitude toward practices that have made the term "Farleyism" a synonym for the spoils system. With such tolerant treatment of the evil, Farleyism will perpetuate itself in some form, even if it acquires a new name during the transition period.

For Block Parties.

For those who have seen the baseball diamonds and tennis courts around the Monument at 5 o'clock on a sunny afternoon, there will be small surprise in the announcement that Washington ranks high as a recreation center. The fact is confirmed by a study of more than 2,200 communities conducted by the National Recreation Association. Miss Sybil Baker, District supervisor of playgrounds, attributes Washington's enthusiasm for recreation programs to the city's park system and the co-operation of the National Capital Parks and Community Center officials. Modestly, she omits all mention of her own office.

Washington's recreation programs, however, must confine themselves in the main to daylight hours. Some part of the gain in providing youngsters with healthy recreation as a preventive of juvenile delinquency is thus offset by the fact that children roam the streets after dark. To reduce this practice, which can only invite mischief, if not worse, the Police Department, with commendable initiative, has installed a policeman to act as a juvenile relations officer. Patrolmen coming across wandering children after dark will report their names and addresses to this officer, who will then make inquiry to determine why they cannot be more carefully supervised.

The answer is already known in large part. Family life today is disorganized. Parental discipline is breaking down and congested living quarters have made the streets the only available playgrounds for many children. For this unfortunate condition the prospect of a WPA band providing music for dancing in the streets next week suggests a partial remedy. If dancing in the streets were to become more general, something approximating the fiestas of the Latin or the "block parties" of old New York might spring up here.

Periodically during the summer months, such simple, communal entertainment might serve at least to draw a neighborhood together and perhaps even begin the reconstruction of a settled home life. If it proved so, there is an added recommendation for the idea: boondoggled music might then find some justification.

Between Congress And Court.

Much more than the case immediately in issue was involved when Judge Bailey of the District of Columbia Supreme Court recently enjoined collection of the excise taxes upon the railroads, and the income tax imposed upon their employees, for the purpose of financing a system of railway retirement pensions.

The judge held that the taxes were levied not to provide revenue for the purposes of government but "solely for a purpose which the United States Supreme Court has held not to be within the domain of the Federal Government." He further explained that the carriers would suffer irreparable loss if called upon to pay taxes subsequently declared to be illegal. Many employees would likewise run risks in relying upon annuities that might prove not to be permanent. Furthermore, railway rate adjustments, reorganization plans, and accounting outlays will all be affected by the final outcome of suits testing the validity of the enjoined tax payments.

As a result of this ruling the Railroad Retirement Board is called upon to administer a pension system without knowing the ultimate fate of the provisions for financing it. Thus is revealed another striking example of the administrative confusion created by the passage of laws of doubtful constitutionality. Adverse lower court decisions do not remove the difficulties. They merely add to them by making it uncertain whether or not to institute changes which may ultimately prove to be unnecessary if not definitely illegal.

The time elapsing between the establishment of machinery for enforcing laws, and final adverse decisions as to their constitutionality, has sometimes been so long that return to the status quo has been impossible. Thus, the period from the launching of the NRA to the date of the historic decision that brought the structure down in ruins was sufficient to metamorphose our system of competitive industry. It was adequate to create new relationships between labor and capital, to impose new obligations and to confer both benefits and injuries that subsequent adverse court decisions could not offset or completely erase. Similarly, the AAA established a system of agricultural price and production control which has left indelible marks upon our domestic economy. While it lasted the Government collected excise taxes from one group of citizens for the benefit of another. The invalidation of these processing taxes by the Supreme Court could not repair the injury done to certain individuals and groups by the unconstitutional levies. It merely created new fiscal perplexities for the Government.

Even those contested laws which successfully run the judicial gauntlet, such as the legislation abrogating the gold clause, give rise to protracted uncertainties during the preliminary testing period. The still questionable status of the holding company legislation, the social security act and the Wagner labor relations act further emphasize the need for speedy determination of the constitutionality of new laws—especially those affecting economic relationships.

It is easy to complain about the patent evils that flow from our practice of enforcing laws of dubious constitutionality before they have been subjected to a final judicial test. It is by no means easy, however, to suggest the desirable remedy for this evil. It would scarcely be obtained by depriving the courts of the right to pass upon the question of constitutionality, which would be equivalent to undermining our entire system of government.

To set an arbitrary time limit to the period during which the constitutionality of an act can be challenged is one of those solutions which looks nice but would bring new abuses. To give the Supreme Court original jurisdiction in cases involving constitutional issues, as Senator Norris has proposed, would probably increase the delay in securing a final test, and impose impossible burdens upon the Court of last resort. Proposals to change the number of affirmative votes necessary to invalidate a law would not meet the problem entailed by delayed judgments.

In short, the situation appears to be one in which specific remedies are either ineffective, or else worse than the ills they were meant to cure. Under our Federal system of government, with the limits between reserved and delegated powers loosely defined, there will always be room for honest differences of opinion regarding the constitutionality of many laws. But at any given time Congress and the Executive should be able to judge when they are trenching upon forbidden ground. Various New Deal laws, such as the Guilef coal act for example, were passed despite the knowledge that they would probably be outlawed.

This practice of "passing the buck" to the Supreme Court is indefensible. Unwitting legislative mistakes may be made, of course, but they are not likely to be frequent if the Congress is a truly responsible body, alive to its duties. Advance opinions as to the constitutionality of proposed measures cannot properly be given by the courts. That would subject the country to a form of judicial domination as dangerous as legislative or executive tyranny. It would, however, be entirely feasible for the lawmaking branches of government to seek and to act upon expert advice from the Attorney General and his aids.

If these officials were impressed with a sense of their responsibility for upholding the Constitution instead of regarding themselves as simply apologists for and defenders of the laws on the statute books, there would be fewer occasions for contests. And those that arose could be settled much more expeditiously.

It would seem entirely appropriate for any administration to refrain from pressing legislation the constitutionality of which was questioned by its own Attorney General. And, conversely, it would seem equally appropriate for an Attorney General unable to estimate the constitutionality of a bill with reasonable accuracy to make way for a more competent adviser.

Cutting New York's Deficit.

Gov. Lehman's critics rather capiously stress his failure to fulfill an earlier promise to eliminate the State's accumulated deficit and show a small surplus by the end of the last fiscal year. They also accuse him of being unduly complacent in commenting upon the close approximation of realized receipts and expenditures to estimates, pointing out that estimates of receipts were drastically revised downward about six months ago. Nevertheless, the Governor is entitled to claim considerable credit for achieving an operating surplus of over $41,000,000 during the past year. "Never before," he says, "has the State in a single year received so much more than it spent."

It was the misfortune, not the fault, of Gov. Lehman to have inherited an accumulated deficit of $114,000,000 from his predecessor in office—Gov. Roosevelt. His has been the thankless task of trying to cut that deficit during a period when relief demands have been extraordinarily heavy. His political enemies berate him for imposing burdensome emergency taxes which have helped to reduce the deficit to slightly less than $56,000,000. At the same time, they taunt him with failure to realize his aim of wiping out the deficit completely by the end of last June. One can only wonder what the critics would have said if taxes had been increased or expenditures reduced sufficiently to absorb the remaining deficit.

Certainly the budgetary problems which Gov. Roosevelt left to his successor in office are a forcible reminder of the trouble that President Roosevelt is laying up for himself or somebody else in the rapidly accumulating Federal deficit. Gov. Lehman's courageous insistence upon new emergency taxes does not, however, suggest a solution of the Federal budgetary problem. That will have to come through progressive and radical reductions in governmental spending.

Elucidating Mysteries.

All too long for the public welfare has the field of finance, governmental and otherwise, been looked upon as the private preserve of experts speaking a technical jargon as remote from the ken of the average citizen as is Swahili or Tagalog. How dangerous a force this financial illiteracy can be in American life, recurrent developments in our history clearly show.

In recent years this ignorance of the realities regarding money, banking and finance has given a great assortment of charlatans and demagogues their opportunity. Were the public at large initiated in the fundamentally simple mysteries of this branch of knowledge many current developments would receive the short shrift called for by their essential idiocy.

It is, therefore, encouraging to note that at least scattered efforts are now being made to fill the long-felt want. At the Institute of Public Affairs of the University of Virginia, open discussion of financial problems is an important part of the schedule. And during the past few days two notable speeches have been made by experts in the field. What is particularly noteworthy is that both the speech of Orrin G. Wood, president of the Investment Bankers Association, and Edmund G. Platt, vice president of the Marine Midland Group, Inc., of New York, were so simply and clearly worded as to be comprehensible to all.

More of this sort of public discussion is obviously needed. The American people can stand a great deal of enlightenment regarding the elements of financial problems. And when they get a banker on the rostrum it will usually be discovered that he is a very decent fellow, quite willing to argue the pros and cons of matters which are apt to give him many sleepless nights.

"Mass Reprisals."

The slaughter of ten Black Shirt aviators has been described in the Italian press as the work of casual "bandits." But elsewhere the suspicion will be aroused that it represents a recurrence of guerrilla warfare by the Ethiopians. According to London reports, a total of 30 Italians in East Africa have been slain from ambush during recent days. Thus, when Haile Selassie told the League of Nations that his government was still functioning, he may have been making more than a rhetorical point. Ethiopia is by no means fully conquered. The process of subjugating that country to the point where every vestige of resistance is ended may take years.

In the meantime world public opinion will be shocked to learn of the Italian plan to take "mass reprisals" against the Ethiopians. Presumably this means that native towns will be bombed indiscriminately to serve as a warning to "bandits." Quite aside from humanitarian considerations, such tactics fly in the face of that first canon of international law which forbids attacks on civilians during a war.

Letters To The Editor.

President McKinley's Part

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of July 6 Frisby Gilbert gives William McKinley credit for restoring prosperity after the depression that started in 1893. Mr. Gilbert is flatly in error. McKinley did not restore prosperity. He was largely responsible for the depression.

When Grover Cleveland retired from the Presidency in 1895 there was a surplus of $200,000,000 in gold. When he returned to the Presidency in 1893 he inherited a practically bankrupt country from the Harrison Administration: the gold reserve was about $100,000,000 and steadily falling. This condition was caused principally by the Sherman silver act of 1890 and the McKinley tariff bill, the redemption of Government bonds at 25 per cent premium and general mismanagement of finances by the Harrison Administration.

President Cleveland called a session of Congress to meet in August, 1893. The Congress repealed the Sherman silver act. An act was passed in 1893 by Congress authorizing the President of the United States to buy gold in the open market. The Cleveland Administration availed itself of the act and two bond issues were authorized in order to provide the Treasury with money. McKinley expressed his astonishment that a Democratic Administration handed over to a Republican Administration such a volume of money.

McKinley did not restore prosperity. The going was very bad after his election and inauguration; but the automobile came into being and that, with revolutions in the industrial world and the fearlessness of captains of finance and industry, restored the country.

Mr. Gilbert states that the Republicans made this country what it is for 50 out of the 70 years. This is an incorrect statement. It was the vestive genius of the people of this Nation that caused prosperity. The country was pulled out of the depression of the 70s by the invention of the telephone, electric light, the construction of new telegraph lines, multiple other inventions and the gradual passing of the United States from an agricultural to an industrial nation. In the following 50 years hundreds of thousands of new patents created unlimited fields for labor, thereby increasing the buying power of the people.

The Issue Is More Than Unionism

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Observer" has accomplished the usual conservative feat of writing three paragraphs and saying nothing. Had he confined himself to an emotional outburst against communism his letter would have been more amusing and entertaining; as it is, he merely produces a weak attack against collective bargaining.

The present issue is an excellent parallel with the past when Alexander Hamilton recommended arming the Negro slaves to fight against the British. Southern leaders objected to this because the slaves were then on the verge of revolt against their masters; now, a similar conflict exists regarding company unions. To say that company unions work "in peace and harmony with their employers" is equal to a wisecrack of Corey Ford—company unions "are" the employers, and to say that a member of a company union is satisfied would be as absurd as to say that a sharecropper or a turnip eater in Georgia was the happiest human in the world.

The issue, we might point out to "Observer," is more than unionism—it is the present and future welfare of the American working class. Because of this, the steel czar, like the Southern planters, want to keep their slaves shackled by a company union lest they organize a real union and demand a decent wage and living conditions for themselves and dependents. Thousands of workers in Washington, millions in America, are enjoying a shorter workday, higher wages, better working conditions, and more security in their old age because union workers, from the Haymarket martyrs to the present time of John L. Lewis, fought for these things and gave them not only to union labor, but to the American people as a whole.

Modern Advertising.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I agree with the physician who deprecates use of the comic section of the papers for cigarette advertising. Permit me to go further. High pressure advertising is the plague of modern existence. Barnum was right. Americans will swallow any kind of bait—hook, line and sinker.

Each manufacturer claims his product superior to "other leading brands." Somebody is lying! But the public holds the bag. (And let's not forget to mention the affected tone of voice and silly talk of radio announcers as they proclaim the merits of sponsors.) It would, no doubt, be a revelation to know the actual cost of manufacture of certain products compared to the cost of advertising such products.

Naturalization Incident.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What of the way courts have been dealing with well meaning, self-respecting men and women who apply for naturalization? I saw one Italian, over 55 years of age, who had gone five years to night school to fit himself for the privilege, and only to be turned out with tears and perhaps resentment in his eyes, because he failed to understand the word "impeachment" during the course of questions!

We wonder if such things as these moved fascists to extreme nationalism, even as the Hitlerites might have been spurred because a non-German tailor fooled giles, mayors and governors for about three months, posing as a war hero just found out that he had been working at his trade over in Italy all during the war.

Wealth Distribution.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In these intolerant and indignant days even philanthropists break bounds, as witness an article in the current issue of a popular weekly wherein the author invites the attackers of plutocracy to take a shot at him. He attempts to controvert the current estimate that 4 per cent of our 125,000,000 population owns 87 per cent or $215,000,000,000 of its $245,000,000,000 of wealth; the remaining 96 per cent of our folks owning only $32,000,000,000.

His attempts to demonstrate his theory prove his utter undoing. To prove his point he tabulates certain classes of proprietors and their holdings:

Ten million families own urban residences worth $38,000,000,000; 6,000,000 farmers own lands worth $32,000,000,000; 50,000,000 people own cars worth $3,000,000,000. But his fatal blunder, if his argument isn't intentionally specious, is that he fails to note that 9 out of 10 of these residences, farms and automobiles have not only a holding owner, but a mortgage as well. In other words, the poor fortunate man seems to have forgotten there ever existed such a thing as "debt," and that the mortgage holder's equity generally tops that of the purchaser and that there were far fewer of him owning the big financing company.

He also forgot that life insurance which he cited was overwhelmingly increased as to value by a small number of big $100,000 to $1,000,000 policies. His crowning folly, though, was citing 24,000,000 holders of $62,000,000,000 worth of stocks and bonds, Caesar's ghost, what Horrie laughter! That $62,000,000,000 pile of "buzzards," as they are technically called, would provoke! Bought, and probably by the author listed at $40 to $50 per share, now worth $1 to $2, the savings of the rich syndicates.

"Tis true, 'tis pity; pity 'tis, 'tis true," that it is still factually credible that 4 per cent owns that 87 per cent.

GEORGE E. GAY.

Senator Gore's Defeat.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a hotly contested primary, such as that which witnessed the elimination of Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, not one but many factors account for defeat. Ranged against the present incumbent was a field that offered a variety of issues to distract and win voters away. The outcome may, of course, indicate that Oklahoma is not disposed to tolerate criticism of New Deal measures. But it is much more likely that the vote represents the strong pull exerted by younger or more persuasive politicians.

With a former college professor, and a humorist to boot, opposing him, along with a vice president of the Townsend Old Age Pension Club, Senator Gore had a handicap to overcome. In Gov. Marland, too, he faced an experienced veteran who made a popular appeal with his proposal for a constitutional amendment providing for a $30 per month old-age pension financed by a sales tax. It is not without significance that the people were reported to be voting for the pension and against a $500,000 appropriation for soil conservation work.

The evident hold of Townsendism upon a section of the Oklahoma electorate as shown by the heavy vote cast for Candidate Smith must have made Senator Gore's campaign slogan of "no trusts, less taxes, more trade" seem singularly colorless to voters who wanted more taxes paid by somebody else to support them in old age. It is of course impossible to guess at the mixed motives that influence the outcome of intra-party contests of the Oklahoma type, but the drawing pull of public subsidies for private and personal benefit seems to have been among the causes accounting for Senator Gore's defeat.

The Post Impressionist

Alumnus Returns.

Post Office, Friday.

REMEMBER Elmer Suttle, who used to be this Column's student-correspondent at a certain CCC camp not far from Washington? Well, he graduated last winter. And now, it being the season for old grads to revisit their academic groves, he has revisited his—and tells us about it in the modest third person.

"When Elmer was much younger," he says, "he would always feel tight around his heart and out of breath whenever he got on the train to visit his grandparents. The train would stop at every station and let him see familiar landmarks: a red silo on a hill, a swamp with gray trees standing bare in muddy water, a half-dozen turtles sunning themselves on a log near the tracks. His getting-off station was just a box-car on a siding—the hills would be full of colors and sweet-smelling, and the roads would be red and hard, or red and muddy, and full of ruts. Elmer always got a kick out of it—until they built a white-and-yellow station like all the other stations along that railroad."

"Elmer felt the same way when he left the CCC camp last winter. He didn't tell anybody, but he felt all gully when Butch drove him down to the Gap and left him. He wanted to reach out and squeeze the mountains and not let go. He needed the job that he'd got in Washington; but he'd miss the camp: card games, ping-pong, dressing up for mess, even getting bawled out by a lieutenant. He'd miss the tourists, the laurel and columbine—and lying on a boulder 4,000 feet up among the jackoals and birch, looking at the clouds and the valley and a toy train puffing across the landscape."

"Rocks in his bed, the Captain making him scrub spots off his knife, revolve and taps, the goofy bunch lined up for roll-call shivering in half-hitched pants, with the drum corps looking like a burlesque Spirit of '76 in a Mack Sennett comedy: he'd miss it . . .

"So, when Jerry said last week he'd drive Elmer to the camp for a day, Elmer hopped at the idea. Maybe some of the fellows would be gone; maybe nobody'd care that he'd come back. But, anyhow . . .

"'Ground-hawg Day' says the Sergeant. 'Look who's here!' 'Til be damned,' says Slewfoot; 'they get worse all the time! That no-count, drunken Horseface Riley was here last Sunday, and now we have to put up with Elmer! With no necktie on, too! You think because you ain't in O. D.'s you can come around sloppy as hell. 'I was the Captain I wouldn't let you in the mess like that!'

"Elmer and Jerry grinned and went in the mess with the Sergeant. All the fellows were through and they had a table to themselves. A lieutenant waved from the officers' section, but didn't come out to speak to them.

"'Same old caste system,' thought Elmer—but he can't say it."

"Well, does it feel any different to be back to your alma mammy?" asks Jerry, winking at the Serg. "No," says Elmer. "Feels like I haven't been away except for overnight . . .

"We'd better not hang around too long," thought Elmer, "or I'll get homesick and kick off these clothes for O. D.'s, even if the Army issue is as hot as hell these summer days. That is, I'll kick these clothes if they'll take me back . . .

"Suddenly he turned to the Sergeant.

"'Could I get back in again, Bill, if I wanted to?'

"The Serg looked at him as if to say, 'You damn fool—you're homesick, like all the rest of the boobies who go over the hill!'

"But what the Serg really said was:

"'I guess we could fix you up.'"

"Elmer thought:

"If it wasn't for that fog! The fog gets in your locker. It gets in your clothes. It gets in your throat. And, half the time, you can't see your hand before you."

"What this country needs," thought Elmer, "is a Fog-Elimination Project."

"Slewfoot tried to get them to spend the night; but they had to get back to the city before dark, so they left early."

"Behind them, a storm was coming over Hawkswill. A few drops were already falling against the windshield. . . . Soon, however, they ran out of it and into the valley, where the sun was shining."

"Want to go back to the old Army game?" asks Jerry.

"Oh, you go to hell! said Elmer. 'You never stayed in one place long enough to get homesick for it!'

"In a little while, they would be out of the mountains and among the low hills and the towns—and it would be all over like a dream suddenly gone, and another slice of his life would be spent. Elmer began to feel gully . . .

"When he hit Washington he'd call up that dizzy blonde—and forget the Camp."

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler.

Back Stairs Authors.

Once again old Mr. Lloyd George feels the stir of life, and something in the tone of his remarks about the present British cabinet suggests that he is about to have another volume of his war memoirs. Mr. Lloyd George delivered an election speech in which he described the Baldwin ministry as rats. This is strong language even for England, where political parties often sneer at each other in the House of Commons.

Even if it does remind the English-speaking world that Mr. Lloyd George is an author and stimulate business for his books, nobody can declare that he was merely making baloney. Maybe he actually does think that the present cabinet is composed of rats, although it is not always possible to discover what he thinks from what he says.

The old gentleman with the white mane has been since his retirement one of the most prolific authors of intimate history in all the world. English politicians are prone to regard their cabinet as the back stairs and to keep diaries and files of miscellaneous papers for future profit.

American statesmen have not been very successful at this sort of tattling, seeming to regard their secret, informal material, obtained under confidential circumstances, as something which properly belongs to the Nation and not to themselves. Or it may be that they are merely careless, forgetting to put in the stuff that would make commercial copy after the wheel has turned.

Mr. Lloyd George did not get much pay as war prime minister. The income tax reduced his net to about $10,000 a year, and out of that he had to buy groceries and whisky and wine for a great many unavoidable expenses. He went to Downing street to discuss the war with him. Miss Isabel MacDonald, when she opened her roadhouse in England a few months ago, said there was very little difference between her roadhouse and the one in Downing street.

Benito Mussolini also did a good business in memoirs, but, although he is a journalist by trade, he performed this work through the medium of a forger, or spook. Perhaps he was too busy to do the job by hand, but then, too, he was known as an awful faker when he was running around northern Italy and Switzerland with the seat of his pants on his back.

Your correspondent had a long visit with the Duce's forger, or spook, one day last winter and reckoned from the mode of her life that they must have cut up quite a nice bunk of American and British money. The forger was a lady, and as she spoke with great feeling about the noble sacrifice of the Italian peasant women who were toiling in the gold wedding rings and miserable little rinds of the world, she melted me by her back on a divan twirling on her finger not only a wedding ring but a diamond ring with two stones each the size of a bath sponge.

Lloyd George is by far the best of these back-stairs authors of the Old World. The old gent has a knack for it. He is tough, truculent, variable and without illusions about men who are accepted by the world as great historical figures and national heroes. His opinion of general is that of a general, and his way of helping to help them out of their blunders, make allies for them and hang decorations on their tunics to gratify their own vanity and deceive the nation into a belief that they were good. He knew as much about medals and orders as he never accepted so much as a lapel button for himself.

There is no telling whether he thinks the present cabinet is composed of rats or not. During the war the old man sent armies out to capture the German colonies, but a few months ago he rose up in Commons and gave the government the devil for not turning them back to Hitler.

First Lady Declines Comment on Book

New York, July 9 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt reserved expression tonight of her opinion of "The Wonder Book of the World," which attacks Administration policies on air mail contracts.

She was revealed today as a member of the editorial board of the Junior Literary Guild, which listed the book among its July recommendations.

The book was written by Lauren D. Lyman, an aviation reporter for the New York Times, and C. B. Allen, aviation reporter for the New York Herald Tribune.

"All members of the board write secret opinions," Mrs. Roosevelt explained, "and the opinions then are collated and a composite opinion is announced."

"Since other members of the board are not being asked for their opinions, I shall have to refrain from expressing mine."

Poundmaster Post To Be Taken Up Today

With the field of applicants for the job of District poundmaster reduced from 21 to 6, the District Commissioners today will interview the half dozen prospects before selecting a successor to the late Walter R. Smith.

The Oklahoma Race

Lee Seems Certain Democratic Candidate For Senate, With New Deal Enthusiasm Running Too High For Upset.

By Tully Nettleton.

Special Correspondent of The Post.

ACCORDING to most of the accepted lines of forecasting it seems a fairly reasonable presumption in the light of Tuesday's primary that after next January the junior Senator from Oklahoma will be a youngish-looking fellow named Josh Lee.

Lee has, however, two hurdles yet to clear before he can sit in the seat from which Oklahoma voters have effectively retired the picturesque and eloquent blind Senator Thomas P. Gore. One of these hurdles is the run-off primary, an institution peculiar to a few Southern States and inaugurated in Oklahoma a few years ago; the other is the general election in which a Republican nominee is to be faced in November.

Similar indications are that the Republican nominee will be Herbert K. Hyde, youthful, energetic and capable former United States district attorney who was a star member of one of the University of Oklahoma debating teams which, as professor of public speaking, coached not many years ago the now famous blind Senator. The fact that the New Deal was able to put out not two of its supporters into the run-off primary out of a field that included a national officer of the Townsend old-age pension plan and a much respected incumbent of the office with the prestige of 19 years' service in the upper house, makes the result undeniably a victory and an endorsement for the Roosevelt Administration far as Oklahoma Democracy is concerned.

Run-Off Primary Makes Majority Support Certain.

THE OBJECT of the run-off is to make sure that no nominee goes into the general election until he has polled a clear majority of votes in his party. Heretofore Oklahoma has had some troubles with candidates sometimes of a rather demagogic stripe who, by getting into a badly divided field, could count on nomination with only a minority of votes and sometimes not even a very large minority. Such a nomination in the Democratic Party was nevertheless, in most years, practically equivalent to election. Such a case was the election of former Gov. J. C. "Jack" Walton, later impeached but now a member of the State Corporation Commission.

In case a rank outsider captures first place the run-off is supposed to give the regulars a chance to get together if their support has been divided among two or three candidates and to head off the undesirable by lumping their votes on their best man. In the present instance, however, there seems more likelihood that Lee will profit rather than lose by realignments in the second primary.

There is no suspicion that the strength of Gov. Marland's organization lay mainly among State officeholders and their friends and that these have about shot their bolt in the vote that was cast for him this week. Furthermore, both Lee and Marland plumped so wholeheartedly for New Deal spending for social security and the AAA as to make them about equally repellent to the more conservative followers of Senator Gore and about equally attractive to the pension enthusiasts who made Gomer Smith a very close third.

It would not be unprecedented if Marland, who has two years to serve as Governor, should withdraw from the run-off, for it was by a similar waiver on the part of Tom Anglin that he received nomination to his present office.

Smith Vote Reflects Townsend Plan Sentiment.

JUST HOW MUCH of the strong Smith vote can be attributed to real Townsend-plan sentiment is hard to say, though Oklahoma unmistakably has been a fertile field for organization. Smith was already personally well known from several previous campaigns for office as well as an extensive law practice, and is a vigorous, resourceful speaker with a marked talent for making at least part of almost any audience believe that black is white.

Lee made his campaign slogan "A farm for every farmer and a home for every family." Which sounds like a rather large package to deliver but he proposes to foster it by long-term, low interest loans on homes, urban or rural, and by "grubstaking" families who want to buy small acreage or farm homes. That's finding a good old Western word for resettlement Administration.

His platform as printed on his campaign cards also favored an "honest" or "stabilized" dollar, indicating sympathy with the inflationist senior Senator from the State, J. Elmer Thomas. It also advocated increasing popular buying power by giving the farmer "cost of production plus a reasonable profit," the wage earner "more than a bare existence wage," the old folks "an adequate pension without a pauper's oath" and to small business, protection from unfair competition.

However utopian or generalized these phrases may sound in some quarters they evidently expressed the yearnings of well over 150,000 Oklahomans who have thought they saw in the New Deal a friendly hand amid years of drought, dust storms, farm foreclosures and hard times that left their mark on the towns as well as the countryside.

Even in fourth position, of course, Senator Gore polled a count which, if it could be considered entirely a protest vote and could be depended on to swing Republican rather than endorse Roosevelt, would go a long way toward returning a Republican Senator even against the normal Democratic majority. But Oklahoma Democrats will take a lot of punishment for that.

Lee, who has a law degree from college in Tennessee. Although the campaign was punctuated with personal attacks by several speakers, Lee refrained from these.

Lee talks to farmers as a farm owner himself and as the son of a country minister. Yet, he is proof that one does not have to be a hick to be appreciated in the sticks. Besides being a professor of public speaking in the State university, where he worked his way to a bachelor's degree in English and history, he holds an M. A. in political science from Columbia University and a law degree from college in Tennessee.

Peru, Ecuador Dispute Is Left To Roosevelt

Arbitration of Old Border Quarrel to Open Here in September.

By the Associated Press.

To promote the spirit of the "good neighbor" in the Americas, President Roosevelt last night assumed the role of arbitrator in the 100-year-old boundary dispute between Peru and Ecuador.

Senor Manuel De Freyre, the Peruvian Ambassador, and Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, the Ecuadorian minister called at the White House during the day to advise the President that boundary commissions would arrive here in September to begin arbitral negotiations.

The President hailed the decision of the South American Republics to submit their case to arbitration as designed "to insure the success of the deliberations of the 21 American Republics at the approaching inter-American peace conference" to be held at Buenos Aires.

Rate Accepted in 1934.

After discussing the arbitration arrangements with the President, the two governments agreed to serve as arbitrator in the boundary dispute between the Republic of Ecuador and the Republic of Peru in accordance with terms of the Ponce-Castro Oyanguren protocol concluded between those two countries in 1924, which provided that if the two governments were unable to fix a definitive line through direct negotiation, the zone upon which they could not agree should be submitted to the arbitral decision of the President of the United States.

"I have been particularly glad to receive, today, the visit of the Ambassador of Peru and the Minister of Ecuador, who have officially advised me that the nature of the arbitration has now been agreed upon by the two governments through a further protocol signed on July 8 last, which also provides that the delegations of the respective countries will commence their final negotiations in Washington on September 30 next.

"This decision of these two great republics to settle their pending adjudication of this long-continuing controversy will be regarded as a motive for encouragement and gratitude by all lovers of peace on the American continent."

Jungle Area Disputed.

The area in dispute encompasses an expanse of jungle and tableland in the heart of unexplored South America, 400 miles long and 400 miles wide and equal to approximately 120,000 square miles. Within the territory, which has been claimed by both Peru and Ecuador since the early 1800's, is all the territory in the basins of the Napo, Tigre, Curaray, Pastaza and Morona rivers, and the upper Amazon River. Most of the area is impenetrable jungle, inhabited by Indian tribes, including headhunters, and containing only a few tiny villages at the heads of navigation.

The Peruvian claim would cut the present Ecuador almost in half, leaving it with only the territory from the Andes Mountains to the Pacific.

The Ecuadorian claim extends to the upper Amazon and includes the territory in the heart of the disputed area and the seat of oil concessions to American and other foreign countries.

Women Hear Plea Of Mrs. Roosevelt

New York, July 9 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt appealed today to nearly 1,000 women teachers from all parts of the country who are beginning summer courses at Columbia University to support and help improve Federal "social security" agencies.

Federal spending crowd which jammed the auditorium two hours before the speech began and left an overflow of hundreds in the corridors was told by the Nation's First Lady that "this is a question of a partisan politics—it is a question of social security and the civilization of the United States."

Federal social security measures, including old-age pension and aid for the blind and crippled; the Securities Exchange Act, the Home Owners Loan Corporation, the Tennessee Valley Authority and land rehabilitation and reforestation measures were listed by Mrs. Roosevelt as "agencies that contribute to the security of the American home and family."

Ted Husing's Wife Will Seek Divorce

Reno, Nev., July 9 (AP)—Celia Ryland, actress wife of Edward B. (Ted) Husing, radio sports announcer, has established residence here for divorce, it became known today.

Mrs. Husing, the former Frances Sizor, of Savannah, Ga. arrived about ten days ago and retained the law firm of Hawkins, Mayotte & Hawkins as divorce counsel.

"A divorce suit will be filed by Mrs. Husing about the middle of August," Attorney Robert Z. Hawkins said. "She and Mr. Husing have found they were incompatible and the charges in the divorce case probably will be mental cruelty."

Husing and the actress were married last April 27 at Harrison, N. Y. His first marriage ended in a divorce in July, 1934. An uncontested decree was obtained by Mrs. Helen G. Husing.

Scores Pay Tribute At Bier of Meighan

New York, July 9 (AP)—The body of Thomas Meighan, "Miracle Man" of the movies, lay in a Broadway funeral chapel tonight and scores of those who followed his exploits on the screen flocked to pay him tribute. Meighan died last night at the age of 37. His body will remain in state at the funeral chapel until Saturday morning, when a high mass will be said at St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth avenue.

Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery, in Woodside, Long Island.

Labor Figures En Route to White House

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and moving factor in the split with American Federation of Labor, en route to the White House with Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady, at time he was expected to be answering a summons of the executive council of the A. F. L., meeting here to insist that Lewis disband his committee on industrial organization.

to be holding out for suspension of the recalcitrant unions.

Meanwhile, Green issued a formal statement in which he said that the issues of the fight within the federation had been misrepresented.

He said it was not a controversy over craft unions and industrial unions.

"The facts are," he said, "the American Federation of Labor has applied and will continue to apply both the industrial and the craft union form of organization in all its organizing activities. The so-called industrial union issue which has been so strongly emphasized by the representatives of the committee for industrial organization in the steel organizing campaign falls far under the keener penetrating light of analyzed facts."

Green said it was "loudly proclaimed" that all employees of steel corporations must belong to one union. He said that machinists, electricians, building trades mechanics, railway employees and all other workers for steel companies would be turned over to the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

"However," Green said, "none of these representatives of the C. I. O. will agree to turn over the coal miners and coke workers (over whom the United Mine Workers have been given jurisdiction by the American Federation of Labor) employed by the United States Steel Corporation, the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co., the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and other steel companies, even though said workers may be key men, to the one big union."

"Neither will the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers International Union agree to turn over their members, even though they be key men, to the one big union. Neither would the International Typographical Union agree, if they found the steel corporations were operating printing plants and employing printers, to turn over these workers to the one big union."

The unions referred to in the statement are a part of the Lewis organization.

Green continued: "Representatives of the organizations affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization are willing, in fact they urgently demand, that those workers employed in steel whom they have not and could not have, be turned over to the one big union; but those workers they have, who come under their own jurisdiction even though employed by the steel corporations—never."

Of the new tax on undistributed profits, he said: "If this new system is continued, the question of capital gains will become comparatively unimportant as a revenue producer."

U. of Va. Institute Hears Attack On Capital Gains and Loss Tax

Lovell H. Parker Charges System Interferes With Normal Business Transactions; Suggests Graduated Rates Be Inaugurated.

By the Associated Press.

Charlottesville, Va., July 9.—Criticism of the capital gains and loss tax was voiced today by Lovell H. Parker, chief of staff of the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, speaking before the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs.

He said one defect of the present system of taxation results from the fact that it considers one year only and he asked if it would not be fairer to allow the losses of one year to be offset against the gains of a subsequent year.

"It encourages the taking of losses within one year and encourages the taking of gains," he said.

Inequitable Defect.

He described as "one glaring inequitable defect" of the gains and loss tax the "fact that capital gains are added to ordinary income, but capital losses can only be deducted to the extent of gains, plus $2,000."

"The $2,000 proposition is only a relief affecting the small taxpayer," he said. "Under this system, it is entirely possible for a man to have capital losses of $1,000,000 and still pay a tax of about $650,000. Thus, he is poorer at the end of the year by the total amount of the tax."

"A second defect of our present system results from the fact that it considers one year only. How much fairer it would be if it would allow the losses of one year to be offset against the gains of a subsequent year."

"For instance, a man can start out with $1,000,000 in capital and in a few years find his capital depleted to $500,000, and yet in the meantime pay some hundreds of thousands of dollars of tax to the Government."

Suggests Law Change.

He suggested a change in the law whereby capital gains and losses would be treated separately, with graduated rates instead of as a part of general income.

Discussing his proposed change, he said: "Conceive of capital gains and losses going into a separate basket by themselves. Now, if you will imagine a capital gains tax with graduated rates, approximating one-half our present tax rates, and imagine capital losses as an offset against gains with a provision whereby the capital net losses may be carried forward for a period of six years, it will be found that a fairly equitable result will be obtained."

Of the new tax on undistributed profits, he said: "If this new system is continued, the question of capital gains will become comparatively unimportant as a revenue producer."

Godfrey N. Nelson, secretary of the New York Times, told the round table on problems of business and finance that the capital gains tax should be eliminated "in the interest of both the Government and the taxpayer."

A history of income taxation, beginning with the proposed tax bill of 1815, was traced by Nelson. He pointed to what he termed injustices and inequalities growing out of the taxation of capital assets.

"A capital gain tax imposed upon the individual is destructive of his capital," he said, "but the same tax applied to the corporation is basically unsound and doubly destructive."

"We all recognize that taxes are essentially arbitrary in their effects, and that they cannot be so framed as to work equitably in all cases. But an income tax upon capital gain is inherently inequitable because it is imposed on something which neither is income nor represents income in its true sense. And to tax capital gains and disallow, or limit to a comparatively nominal amount, capital losses is the height of arbitrariness."

The Democratic National Committee announced yesterday that Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes would represent the Democrats at the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs July 17.

Former Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, will represent the Republicans.

The committee said John Dickinson, Assistant Attorney General, would represent the party at a round table discussion of the party platforms Thursday. Herman Langworthy, Kansas City, chairman of the Republican platform committee at Cleveland, will represent the Republicans.

Yesterday's announcements were the Democratic national organization's answer to reports it was boycotting the institute because it was linked at the abundance of Liberty League speakers at the 1935 session.

Boulevard Farms Also Has 3 Acres of Shaded Lawns.

By Chastice.

If you are one to keep up with the newest in places to go after sundown, you'll be trekking out to Boulevard Farms one of these hot evenings. Here's a few of the details:

On the Mount Vernon highway four miles beyond Alexandria, opposite Collingwood The House, three acres of shaded lawn, built of spruce and pine logs from the surrounding forestland, managed by J. E. Bennett, aid to former Superintendent of Police Glasford, is a group of farms comprising a total of 1,100 acres, a dance floor of 1,000 square feet, seating capacity of 400, public furniture, Mrs. Ole Rasmussen, hostess (formerly of Rockville Hotel).

In order to make proper use of that huge dance floor at Boulevard Farms, the six Melodians have been engaged for dancing.

On the Air Today—Radio News, Programs

Gordon Bennett, the WRC early morning better-upper, has been threatened for many months to stage a golf tournament. When the plot finally crystallized, it turned out to be a long-distance driving contest, which sounds a lot simpler and far more fun than a dozen and a half holes in this weather.

The competition is open to both men and women, women in the afternoon and men at night. The contest, July 22 and 23, and prizes. To make it simple and give everyone an opportunity to enjoy the fun, Gordon has arranged for balls and drivers for the use of those who own no equipment. You pay nothing, you get into a bit of competition and you may win something. Who could ask for more? Gordon will tell you more about it each morning in his "Time-keeper" period at WRC.

In my wondering aloud yesterday in regard to Maj. Bowes, I failed to mention that one of the newer ear-to-the-ground sources along New York's Radio Row reports that when the Bowes show switches to the Columbia net in September, the major will have the support of a new and gigantic publicity build-up. The report goes that the Ivy League organization has been retained to picture the major as a "public benefactor." Ugh!

Here and there: All reports to the contrary, Fred Astaire has been signed, sealed and delivered to a sponsor for a series of programs from Hollywood.

Inside stuff: Edward Everett Horton, the film comic, is said to have been engaged to take over the helm of the "Chateau" Saturday night show within four or five weeks. Al Jolson had it. Then it went to Smith Ballou.

Hollywood's top names have finally discovered there's gold in their own kilocycles! The bigger names are asking and getting $3,500 to $4,000 for a single microphone performance. It is said that Garbo has set $10,000 as her price. Jacques Renard and his orchestra, just now vacationing from the Burns and Allen show, has been signed for the new Cantor series.

Irene Rich, who does her weekly stunt for N. B. C. tonight (WMAL), is having a time at Cleveland attending the Great Lakes Exposition. She is scheduled to judge the amateur auditions at the exposition's "Radioland," appear with Ray Perkins at the same place, appear with the orchestra, the Eton Boys and Benay Venuta, and do a guest appearance for still another program.

Jacques Fray, who recently organized an orchestra of his own, advises that there are ten times that can be relied on faithfully to meet with the approval of any group of amusement seekers. They are: "Stardust," "Melancholy Baby," "Blue Skies," "St. Louis Blues," "Very Thought of You," "Sophisticated Lady," "A Pretty Girl is Like a Melody," "My Blue Heaven," and the current "Small Hotel" and "These Foolish Things." Fray is now playing at the St. Regis in New York. He argues that tunes, more than orchestration and fine distinctions in the musicians' ability, is what makes an orchestral program just right with an audience.

Featured today: Frank Kelly, Guests with Frank Kelly, WMAL, at 7:30. Will tell how he bags tigers and elephants.

"Sing, Baby, Sing." Highlight comes from new cinema acted by Adolph Menjou, Alice Faye, Percy Kelly, Ted Healy and Gregory Ratoff, in "Hollywood Hotel," WJSV, at 8.

Maestro Kostelanetz: Introduces his new tune, "Swingin' the Campaign," WJSV, at 9. Soon to be published.

Cavalle Band: Will introduce some choral arrangements in broadcast from Chicago's Grant Park, WMAL, at 9.

Norman Thomas: Speaks from New York banquet, WMAL, at 11.

Regardless of how successful Don Ameche's first film (with Jean Hersholt in "Sins of Men") may be judged, it is definitely announced he will do an air series in the fall, playing romantic leads in a revival of "The First Nighter." J. H. H.

About The Showshops

IN ITS July 1 brochure devoted to "Selected Motion Pictures," the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., otherwise the Will H. Hays office, honors five film productions by designating them the "Best of the Month." These five are the Warner Brothers' picture of Hervey Allen's three-in-one novel, scheduled for comparatively early presentation on the screen of the Earle Theater; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Fury," already seen and heartily approved by the Capital; "The Road to Glory," a Twentieth Century-Fox production, not yet released in this city, with a cast headed by Fredric March, who also plays the title role in "Anthony Adverse;" "Song of China," a Chinese production brought to this country by Douglas MacLean, the son of a former Washington clergyman, and "The White Angel," opening today at the Earle, with Kay Francis starred.

Insofar as resident theatergoers are able to judge, having seen only one of the films given the accolade by Mr. Hays' representative preview groups, the selections are sound. "Fury" was a better picture than anyone suspected prior to its submission to the paying patrons of the Nation and their immediate reaction in its favor. It is understood from authoritative sources that the M-G-M executives were almost unanimous in the belief that "Fury" dealt with a subject—lynch law and mob rule—that was anathema to the average amusement-seeker in quest of entertainment. How wrong they were!

Just at present, the history of "Fury" is repeating itself in the case of Master Bobby Breen's initial vehicle in the celluloids, "Let's Sing Again," more or less briefly commented upon in this space yesterday morning. In timorously presenting this subject to their patrons, the exhibitors of the country are learning somewhat to their amazement that they really "have something." And that "something" goes deeper than any mere glorification of garish invective or photographic wizardry. It is a "something" that springs from the heart.

Concerning "The White Angel," there is no need to go into great detail, especially since that admirable biographical drama, dealing with the life and work of Florence Nightingale, will be comprehensively reviewed, one hopes, here tomorrow. Nevertheless, it seems no more than the part of simple justice to add one more anticipatory word of praise to what already has been said about this thoughtful and impressive recapitulation of a career that always has commanded and deserved world respect.

That word would take the form of congratulation to the producers that they have had the courage and good sense to abstain from any attempt to inject a note of "comedy relief" into the action of a picture that attains something of sublimity in its faithful reflection of a life and career that were dedicated to self-sacrifice and service to humanity, no matter what the hardship or the obstacle to be overcome.

This is the sort of thing that too often tempts the producer to violate its primary purpose by interpolating a totally out-of-key and jangling note in the supposed interest of respite from the tenseness of suspense induced by somber and threatening events. The Warners take on new stature as judicious play-makers by having declined to surrender to any such temptation.

So I am told that in the early sleeping hours of the night, at 10 a. m., again about the middle of the night, at 11 a. m., and finally just as dawn was cracking at 12 m., the phone rang and a mellow, youthful voice inquired about your reporter and what kind of crazy hours did he keep, anyway? Running down a few meager clues, it turned out to be that vivacious young globe-trotter, Maxine Doyle, who suddenly had taken it into her light brown head to desert the lakeside fastnesses of Chicago and come on to Washington to visit friends prior to her headline engagement at the Earle the week of the twenty-fourth. Later in the day, Miss Doyle, accompanied by Mrs. Scadding, her hostess in the Capital, illuminated the tenebrous elegance of the drama department with her brief presence and evinced a fine enthusiasm over being back in her old stamping ground for a sufficient period to be able at least to say "hello" to all her friends. Maxine is in radiant health and spirits and is, by now, a seasoned trouper. She will score the hit of her life when she opens at the Earle—unless all signs are fallible and all signs are not.

Tonight at the National Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds, a Greek spectacle, "Phaeton, Son of Phoebus," written by Miriam Hilton, will be presented by the Summer Festivals Committee in conjunction with the drama committee of the Arts Club of Washington. Such distinguished local players as Maud Howell Smith, Charlotte Patterson, Forney Reese, Maurice Jarvis and the Marion Chace Dancers will take part in this original work. The Marine Band will open the program at 8 p. m., with the pageant-drama following at 8:30. A total of 125 actors, singers and dancers will take part in "Phaeton."

Next week, the Summer Festivals will revert to their regular night of the week, Tuesday, when the Beke-Deleporte Institute of the Dance will present the program, featuring one of the successes of the Imperial Russian Ballet of bygone glory, composed by Drigo and entitled "Les Millions d'Arlequin." Fifty young dancers will participate in this colorful and amusing bit of choreography.

It is interesting to note that when Guthrie McClintic presents John Gielgud in William Shakespeare's "Hamlet" in New York next October, his Ophelia will be the ethereal Lillian Gish. Negotiations looking to this end were completed by Mr. McClintic in London a few days ago. Miss Gish at present is vacationing in England, where McClintic is directing Kate O'Brien's "Ante-Room," with Diana Wynyard as the star.

Former Favorite Returns 'Home'

The ebullient young artist pictured above, as you will have figured out for yourself by now, is the talented and gay Miss Maxine Doyle, former mistress of ceremonies and featured screen player, who yesterday returned to the Capital to visit friends, preliminary to her engagement on the stage of the Earle Theater beginning Friday, July 24. Maxine comes to Washington direct from a successful appearance at the State-Lake Theater in Chicago and, following her headline week at the Earle, will be seen in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other Eastern cities. Her first tour of duty at the Earle was of three years' duration.

Shirley Temple Inspires Team Of Old-Timers

Tiny Star Outdances Two Broadway Veterans in Her Latest Picture.

That noted Hollywood song-and-dance girl, Shirley Temple, has gathered two other famed terpsichoreans to her for the team she heads in her latest picture, "The Poor Little Rich Girl." The little star, who has traveled in top company for the two years of her long stellar career, with such dancing partners as Buddy Ebsen and Bill Robinson, this time appears with Alice Faye and Jack Haley.

Alice Faye, who was singing with Rudy Vallee's orchestra when she won a part in the film, "George White's Scandals of 1934," played in the "Scandals" of the following year, and more recently scored a hit in "King of Burlesque." Rated as one of the top dancers in motion pictures, she is now at work on "Sing Baby, Sing," to which picture she was assigned upon completion of her role in "The Poor Little Rich Girl."

Jack Haley, who risked his slim savings to journey to New York for a career in vaudeville, also has been smiled upon by the dramatic fates. After winning his spurs at the Palace in New York, he appeared successively in "Gay Paree," "Good News" and "Follow Thru" on the New York stage.

After the film version of "Follow Thru," he again appeared on the stage in "Take a Chance," then returned to films for "Sitting Pretty" with Jack Oakie and Ginger Rogers, and "Here Comes the Groom."

Now under contract with Twentieth Century-Fox, he is rated with the best of the heel-and-toe trippers in the film capital, and possesses a fine barytone voice. As have all her previous partners, these two top-notchers are unstinted in expressing their delight at dancing with the littlest trouper of them all.

In one sequence of the picture, where the three execute an involved routine to the sprightly music of "Military Man," one of the Hollywood, July 9.—Shirley Temple, in the flicker "Poor Little Rich Girl," writes Himber, passes a newstand and on a paper there is the headline, "Hauptmann Tells All." And not one of the other papers had a line about Hauptmann.

"As I recall the trial," says Himber, "all the newspapers had it as a headline; and certainly if Hauptmann had told all it would have been news in every paper."

"Also, another situation that I would like explained is the fact that both the owners of the Barry Soap Co. and the Peck Soap Co. felt that the audience should not be burdened with commercials. The sponsors here have other ideas."

It would be a good thing, however, if they followed the example of this movie and did eliminate the commercials. Just tell what company is presenting the broadcast and why, naming the product they wish to sell. Perhaps people out of gratitude would purchase the product.

As he is leaving, Fred is called to a woman's apartment to talk about some stolen jewels. He goes there. She offers him some tea. Some tea spills on his coat sleeve. MacMurray removes his coat, and it can be seen that he isn't wearing suspenders. This is also a fan boner, Mr.

THE business of a picture can be gauged by the number of movie boners the fans send in. There is also a fleet of boners about a picture that does sensational business. This is true about the flicker "San Francisco."

At Jeanette MacDonald's opera debut in that flicker, Clark Gable is standing in the lobby of the Tivoli, waiting for the performance to begin. Jack Holt is talking to Gable, and he tells him that Miss MacDonald doesn't come on the stage until the second act. However, says Arthur Murray, Gable enters the opera house at the beginning of the performance and, there on the stage is Miss MacDonald, singing.

Concerning this opera, Wilfrid Goldamer writes: "When Gable comes in and tells Holt about the Screen Star Is 'Discovered' by Noted Vocalist

Ida Lupino Is Found by Zanatello to Possess Operatic Voice.

Hollywood, Calif., July 9.—One of the most unusual friendships ever developed on a Hollywood sound stage has resulted in the world-famous Giovanni Zanatello, operatic star of an earlier era, and discoverer of and coach to Nino Martini, current screen-grand opera-radio rave, taking a beautiful young actress under his artistic wing in the hope of developing her into an opera and concert singer.

The fortunate girl is Ida Lupino, who Zanatello has revealed, is gifted with an exceptionally fine natural contralto voice.

The 50-year-old tenor, who, incidentally, is the husband of Marie Gay, long the idol of Metropolitan patrons, has advanced his breakfast period from 7 to 8 a. m. that he may devote the extra hour daily to the vocal training of the petite blonde celluloid satellite.

"Ida Lupino's natural voice combines tone and volume, and there is no reason why she cannot win an accolade as vocalist that will equal, if not surpass, the recognition she has already garnered as an actress," said Zanatello, who heretofore has confined his talents as an instructor to Martini.

Discovered by Accident.
The bond between Zanatello and the actress had its inception during rehearsal preliminary to the start of shooting on "The World Is Mine," a new Pickford-Lasky production, which has Martini as the star, with Ida Lupino playing opposite him. During a rest period on the set, Martini sang one of Ida's favorite classical numbers for her and she joined him in the chorus.

After her last note died away, Zanatello rushed to her side, congratulating her on her agility, and questioning her as to her musical background. She told him she had studied piano since she was 10, and that she hoped some day to take up voice culture.

"Then you shall begin tomorrow morning," exclaimed Zanatello, "with myself as your teacher."

The surprised Ida informed him there was nothing she would like better. Then she added:

"But I'm afraid your price would be too much for my purse."

"To one who loves music as you do, Giovanni Zanatello has no price," he shot back. "I shall give you six lessons a week from now until I return to New York in October."

Ida, who has given much of her leisure in recent years to a study of musical composition, aspires to become a composer. Already three numbers for which she wrote both words and music have found ready sale in her native London.

Red Plot Is Revealed
In Brazil; Scores Held

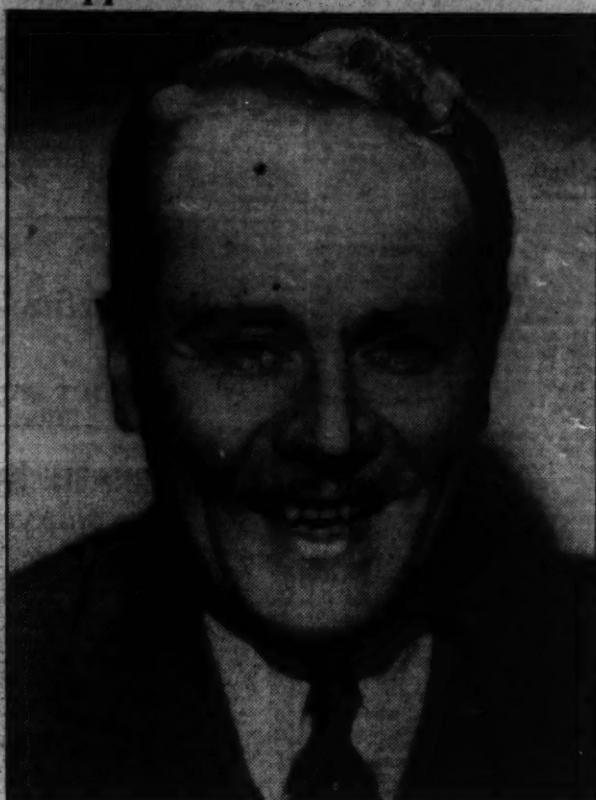

Rio de Janeiro, July 9 (U.P.).—A widespread Communist plot, which in which many lives were lost, was uncovered by police today.

Arrests were made in several towns, and one entire company of the second infantry regiment was jailed. Eighteen sergeants of the company were taken to police headquarters for questioning.

Also arrested was Octavio Dias, owner of a print shop at Petropolis, after police had injured one man in a gun battle during a police raid. Three others escaped.

In Rio Grande do Sul State, 14 alleged members of a regional Communist committee, including Octavio de Paulo, prominent attorney, were arrested at their headquarters at Porto Alegre.

Appears on Two Local Screens

Since we are going in for laughing likenesses today, you should know that this is Charles Ruggles, one of the screen's most competent comics, who is doing yeoman's service on the silver sheets of local picture houses this week. Mr. Ruggles, it will be recalled, is one of the all-star cast appearing in "If I Had a Million," held over with "Man of Aran" for a second week at the Little Theater. He also is co-starred with Mary Boland, one of the cinema's most eminent comedienne, in "Early to Bed," chief screen feature of the bill opening today at the Warner Brothers Metropolitan Theater. Mr. Ruggles is quite a card!

Culbertson On Bridge

Recognizing a Forcing Pass.

Almost all players are familiar with bridge terms, but a great many are hazy as to their exact meaning and what is much more important, their correct application. The term "forcing pass" falls into this category.

The test of whether a pass is of the forcing or garden variety is just this: Has your partner's previous bidding been such as to indicate strongly that he expects you to take some action over his final pass? If so, you are obligated to follow his advice, and either double for penalties or go on with your own bidding. The situation in today's hand, being typical, is forcing of study by those players who are not quite certain about the forcing pass.

Cecilia Robb, Mr. Raymond Are Married

Bride Given in Marriage by Father; Sister Is Attendant.

Miss Meta Glass and Col. Summer Wait Are Among Guests.

In the presence of members of the two families and a few close friends, Miss Cecilia Robb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Robb, was married at 5 p. m. yesterday to Mr. Neil Raymond, of San Antonio, Tex. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents on California street by the Rev. Albert Joseph McCartney, of the Church of the Covenant.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Margaret Lynn Robb, and the best man was Mr. John Montgomery, of Doylestown, Pa., a classmate of the bridegroom at Princeton.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white mousseline de soie over white tulle. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore a frock of peach-colored mousseline de soie made like that of the bride and carried an arm bouquet of garden flowers.

A small reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robb followed the ceremony.

The bride attended the Madiera School, the Sorbonne and Bryn Mawr College. She is a member of the Washington Junior League. Mr. Raymond attended Andover Academy and Princeton University. After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond will make their home in Colonial Village, Clarendon, Va. Among the out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Dora Neill Raymond, mother of the bridegroom; professor of European history at Sweetbriar College; Miss Meta Glass, president of Sweetbriar and sister of Senator Carter Glass; Mr. and Mrs. George Walker Sewin and Miss Mary Lee Browne, of Merion, Pa.; Mrs. Isham Keith, of Warrenton, and Col. Summer Wait, recently appointed military attaché at the American Embassy in Paris.

Capt. Burch, Lora Barwick Are Married

Wedding Is Solemnized in the Chapel at Fort Myer.

Couple to Live at Fort Riley, Kans., After Honeymoon.

Miss Lora Barwick and Capt. Claude C. Burch, Third Cavalry, Fort Myer, were married in the Fort Myer Chapel at noon yesterday by Chaplain Ralph C. Deibert, of Fort Myer.

Miss Barwick, who wore a traveling dress of navy blue chiton, was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Joseph L. Manheim, of Washington. Her only attendant was her cousin, Mrs. George D. Shea, the former Edna Manheim, of Washington, wife of Major Shea, of the Field Artillery, who formerly was stationed at Fort Myer.

The best man was Maj. George H. Millholland, Third Cavalry, Fort Myer.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John M. Barwick, formerly of Sumter, S. C., who has been making her home in Washington for several years, and the late Mr. Barwick.

Capt. Burch is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Martin Burch, of Petersburg, Ind., and has been stationed at Fort Myer for five years.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception for a few intimate friends was held at the home of Maj. and Mrs. Arthur P. Thayer, of Fort Myer.

After an extended honeymoon tour through Canada, the couple will live at the Cavalry School, Fort Riley, Kans., where Capt. Burch has been assigned for duty. The bride has for several years made her home with Mrs. R. D. Manheim, of Washington.

Italy Recalls Signor Migone For Rome Post

First Secretary Here Will Serve in Foreign Office.

The First Secretary of the Italian Embassy Signor Bartolomeo Migone has been ordered to a post in the Foreign Office in Rome and will leave in a few weeks to take up his duties there.

Signor Migone is the last member of the order of secretaries of the Italian Embassy, called by their friends the "Newark street bachelors," because the home they formerly occupied in Newark street was the scene of many gay and informal parties while they were here. The other two were Signor Giuseppe Tommasi, who was transferred last winter to the Foreign Office in Rome, and Signor Andrea Ferrero, who now is consul in New York.

Signor Migone, who is visiting Detroit and Chicago, will return to Washington the first of the week. Another member of the diplomatic corps who is being transferred to another post, and who has left Washington, is Baron Antoine Beyens, Second Secretary of the Belgian Embassy, who sailed from New York yesterday after a month with the Foreign Office in Brussels he will be transferred to another post.

Baron Beyens came to Washington two years ago as a delegate to the Foreign Trade Mission Conference and has been here since.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Babcock, of Takoma Park, are entertaining Mrs. Babcock's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Guthrie, of Sebring, Fla., and her grandfather, Mr. John E. Cruze, of Orlando, Fla., for a few weeks at their home in Riverdale.

They also have as a guest, Miss Doris Ostrom, of Binghamton, N. Y.

Mrs. S. Meyer Barnett is spending a fortnight in Norfolk, Va., with her mother, Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Hofheimer.

Mrs. Morgenthau to Campaign For Roosevelt This Summer

Wife of Secretary of the Treasury Will Join Speakers' Bureau of Democratic Party; Mrs. Roper Sails for England.

By Dudley Harmon.

Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, plans to campaign for President Roosevelt this summer.

Mrs. Morgenthau's activity in the political arena dates back to the period immediately following the World War, when, as a member of her local political women's organization, she frequently addressed meetings. In 1924 she was an elector from her State, but since she was a Democrat, had no opportunity to cast a vote.

The tie between the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Morgenthau are personal as well as political. Mrs. Morgenthau is one of Mrs. Roosevelt's closest friends and often accompanies her on trips around the country. From 1924 to 1928 she worked with her in the women's division of the New York Democratic State committee, during which time she organized the girls and boys' junior Democratic clubs throughout the State and assisted in organizing the women. In 1928 she made a campaign speech for Al Smith over a coast-to-coast radio hookup.

The President and the Secretary of the Treasury are neighbors in New York State, where both own farms, and their friendship had its inception in an exchange of information between the two gentlemen farmers on how best to treat sick trees.

Mrs. Morgenthau, who at present is at her home in Cape Cod with the Secretary, plans to join the Speakers' Bureau now being organized by Miss Mary W. Dawson, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee in charge of women's activities. The bureau is composed of unpaid volunteer workers. Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, has gone far from the political scene. With the Treasurer of the United States and Mrs. William A. Julian, she has sailed on the Queen Mary for a stay in London, and a New York paper quotes Mrs. Julian as saying before she left that she and Mrs. Roper would be presented to King Edward VIII.

The Secretary will sail next week to join her, and together they will motor through Scotland, a country they have visited several times before. During their absence their home on Woodland drive will be occupied by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roper.

Their daughter, Mrs. Frank Bohn, plans to remain in Washington through this month, as Dr. Bohn is busy on a new book. Towards the end of August they will go to Atlantic City and then to Nantucket for a stay.

W. T. Rowan, Jr., Is Married to Miss Mickler

Wedding Is Solemnized in Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church.

The Blessed Sacrament Church, Georgetown, was the scene of the wedding at noon yesterday of Miss Margaret Agnes Mickler, daughter of the late Judge and Mrs. Albert C. Mickler, of St. Augustine, Fla., to Mr. William Joseph Rowan, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Rowan, of Georgetown.

The Rev. John J. McCahill, uncle of the bridegroom and pastor of the Church of Our Lady of the Assumption, Pelham Bay Park, N. Y., officiated, assisted by the Rev. Thomas G. Smyth and the Rev. Thomas J. Crowley.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Judge Bertram C. Mickler, of St. Augustine. She wore a gown of ivory satin made with a flared skirt and wide circular collar. Her silk tulle veil was held by a coronet of pleated tulle, outlined in satin and a cluster of orange blossoms, and she carried a spray of white orchids in a double cluster, combined with lilies of the valley, the ribbons matching the tone of her gown.

Bride's Sister Is Matron.
Mrs. Norman Martin, sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

Mrs. James Francis Tully, another sister, was the only bridesmaid. Dr. Leo J. Donovan was best man. The ushers were Mr. Jackson Price, Mr. Myles McCahill, cousin of the bridegroom; Dr. L. John Salan, Mr. Norman Martin, Mr. S. Albert Mickler and Mr. T. Rogers Mickler.

A reception for relatives and close friends was held immediately after the ceremony at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Philip Brown.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Rowan left for New York and will sail tomorrow to Nassau and Cuba.

After August 20, Mr. and Mrs. Rowan will be at home at 1912 Thirty-fifth place, Georgetown. Mrs. Rowan attended Trinity College and is a graduate of Immaculate Seminary here. Mr. Rowan, a graduate of Georgetown College and of Georgetown Law School, is now engaged in the practice of law in the firm of Rowan and Price.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Youthful Correspondent Is Greatly Perturbed Over Friend's Alleged Unpromising Romance.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 16 years old and my parents keep a boarding house. A few months ago a very dear but foolish friend of mine, who is 17, met the brother of a young woman living at our house and began an innocent flirtation with him. The clever and cunning sister encouraged this couple so much that they are now engaged to be married.

Now, what worries me is this: Despite his attractive features, this young man is beyond a doubt the most stupid and ignorant person I have ever met. His sister must prompt or solicit his every move. To top this off, he has a disease which makes him unfit to marry anyone.

This young man's unscrupulous sister has persuaded my friend that I am anything but a real comrade, which I don't mind so much. Mother has told me, although not in so many words, to let her go to the devil. If I did that, part of myself would go along with her, and I do care about that.

I had thought of telling her mother about this deceitful, mercenary plot, but fear it might be considered meddling. I do not doubt this problem seems trivial compared to the many intricate ones you handle so efficiently. However, I am thanking you in advance for your immediate advice.

DEAR PUZZLED FRIEND: The best advice I can give you in this situation is to mind your own business, keep your own counsel and let the girl, her mother, the young man and his sister work out this little romance along their own lines. You are being a very reckless and indiscreet girl to make allegations against this boy's matrimonial eligibility. How do you know with certainty he has a disease which makes him unfit to marry anyone? Have you a physician's statement to that effect, or are you jumping to conclusions or swallowing hearsay?

It is just possible, you know, that your objections to him are based on jealousy; that you are emotionally upset because your very dear friend has met someone else who has pre-empted your erstwhile first place in her affections. I suggest you write your mother's advice and let the girl friend go her own way.

What you need in order to regain an objective attitude of mind toward the whole situation is a little romance of your own. If the girl has so little faith and trust in your friendship that she will permit her boy friend's sister to poison her mind against you, her friendship isn't particularly worth striving after, fighting for, holding onto.

Whatever the underlying truth is about the whole situation, the fact remains that you are not your old friend's keeper. If she has parents, it must be assumed that they are as much interested in her well being as you are, and quite as capable of looking after it. Don't carry tales to her mother. You won't be thanked if you do.

Plan Walking Trip.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My

And Call It Accident

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

CHAPTER 20.

"I NEED HARDLY ADD that I don't want to touch a penny of your money," he said hurriedly. "As far as I am concerned you can spend it all in connection with your theatrical productions. What's more, I promise you I would never dream of interfering with any plans you made. I realize that you would wish to follow up any big success you had in London with a season in New York."

"I can't think why you are so good to me," she said falteringly. "It's only because I love you."

He looked at her with an expression which transmuted his homely face, at any rate in her eyes, into something noble and almost beautiful. Very nearly did Ruth startling exclaim: "I don't want to wait! I'll say yes now."

She longed for the man who loved her so selflessly to taste real happiness. Utterly different though she was from his mother, she knew just as surely as did old Lady Cleeves that he had had a frustrated life. She felt no repugnance for John Pendervill. She knew he would be as a rock of strength to her, and it seemed to her that the kind of life he offered her would be in a way an ideal life. Not only would she then devote herself to what was still her life's desire and ambition; but when she grew weary, as she might easily do, and indeed she knew she was likely at times to do, she could take shelter and shelter was the word—in the life he offered her. Yet something still seemed to hold her back from making a promise she knew would be irrevocable.

And now he spoke again. "I marvel at my own temerity in asking you to give me even a very small part of your existence. And yet, O, my dear Mary, I say again that I believe I could make you happy."

She murmured in a broken voice, "I'm so grateful for your love, John."

"There's nothing to be grateful for, my darling."

And then with a sensation of dismay Ruth realized that when he had called her his "darling," she had shrunk a little inwardly. That familiar term of endearment evoked another man who had loved her, and still loved her.

But resolutely she told herself that George Dwight belonged to a life that, for good or ill, she had given up forever. George hated the husband and I would like to take a week's vacation, but we don't own a car and we can't afford to stay at an expensive hotel. So we thought the best thing we could do would be to go on a walking tour.

In your column there has been mentioned several times a walking club called "The Wander-birds." Perhaps this club could give us some advice about where to go and how to plan the tour. I can't tramp more than 10 miles a day and we would like to see interesting bits of scenery and go by old roads rather than walk on main thoroughfares thronged with motor traffic.

Sincerely yours,
EAGERFOOT.

DEAR EAGERFOOT: Mr. Robert Shostack, 1221 Orren street northeast, telephone Atlantic 3915, arranges the hikes for "The Wander-birds," so I would suggest you contact him for helpful advice on planning your vacation junket. The best time to reach him by telephone at home is between 2:30 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon; or, if you prefer, you might write him a letter asking for an interview and stating your questions in advance.

Another possible source of helpful information is the touring bureau of the American Automobile Association, Mills Building, local. The telephone number is Metropolitan 4000 and the office is located at Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, just south of the Avenue. You may either state your application in writing to the A. A. A. or present yourself in person.

Miss Hawthorth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her care of The Post Woman's Page.

Today's Health Talk

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

"Bilious attacks" were common enough a generation ago when widely advertised "liver pills" were the vogue and no household was complete without them.

There are, however, many kinds of minor stomach and liver upsets, now recognized accurately, which formerly were grouped under this popular title.

Probably the most typical gastric upset is still with us. The symptoms culminate following a restless night that has been disturbed by bad dreams or nightmares. The patient awakens feeling "rotten," and headache and nausea are complained of. Even a light meal, such as tea and toast, is vomited promptly and retching may continue long after the stomach has been emptied thoroughly.

In most cases the onset may be ascribed to some gross indiscretion in diet—hurried or irregular meals, excessive amount of food, eating when overfatigued or emotionally upset, or sometimes indulgence in too much alcohol. The attacks may occur at any time of life and are commonest among office workers or those who routinely take more food than they can utilize and thus overburden the digestive machinery. In no case should the symptoms be regarded lightly, as actual gall bladder disease, appendicitis, or an intestinal infection may be the predisposing cause. Probably thousands of cases of inflamed appendix have been rendered hopeless through the disregarding of obvious signs and the use of "liver pills." Fifty years ago we heard of many deaths from "inflammation of the bowels," which in most instances meant a ruptured appendix with peritonitis.

In children particularly, because of the incessant vomiting, it is sometimes necessary to give additional fluids to prevent alkalosis. Salt solutions may be absorbed by rectum or injected beneath the skin. No food should be offered or fluids administered by mouth until it is reasonably certain that the patient can retain them. Dilute salt solution, however, may be gratefully accepted.

Not infrequently the skin will become yellowish in color, the tongue heavily coated, and the digestive troubles persist, with a positive catarrhal jaundice. In some cases there is also a low grade infection of the liver, but this usually disappears after a few days. Moderation in the use of food, or even a complete change of diet, may be required to avoid a repetition.

Voice Habits More Easily Altered Early

Value of Good Speaking Often Overlooked by Mothers.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

WHEN MARY'S TEETH came in crooked, her mother at once took her to the dentist to have them straightened. When she sat with her mouth open and snored in her sleep, she had her nasal passages examined, and adenoids removed. When she screwed up her eyes to see things at a distance, and complained of headaches, she was fitted for glasses.

But when Mary developed a nasal twang and a careless way of speaking, her mother did exactly nothing. That the child's speaking voice might in time become a great asset or a still greater liability never entered the mother's head. Nor did she stop to consider that poor speech habits once begun are almost impossible to eradicate. Probably she did not even notice the unpleasant and strident quality of the child's voice, because she never stopped to listen to it.

Had Mary had a good singing voice, she would have been given a careful training. There is money in a singing voice. Perhaps the mother did not realize that today there is money in a good speaking voice. So eager are some people to learn to speak correctly and pleasingly that, after a childhood of neglect, adults are paying well to be trained in the use of the speaking voice.

For one person who can sing, there are thousands, perhaps millions, who can and must speak. Employers are beginning to discriminate against harsh and disagreeable voices, and to choose the well modulated and cultured.

Childhood is the time to train the speaking voice, and if mothers would give as much time and attention to the way a child speaks as they do to his manners or his diet, the child would owe them a lasting debt of gratitude.

Sandal Styled on 'Sabot.'

Paris (U.P.)—Evening sandals can be either high or low heeled, depending upon the height of the wearer. The sandals frequently are nude, exposing the entire heel, the five toes are kept on the foot by a strap across the instep, and a bunch of ribbon bands of caliche which tie at the instep. This type sandal, bat-heeled, definitely has drawn inspiration from the peasant "sabots."

Summer Sale of Fine Furs

Assuring average 15% Savings!

Jelleff's
1214-20 F St.

Yes, you really DO save... you save THREE different ways if you buy NOW!

First you save 15%. Our entire stock has been marked on an average of 15% less than regular prices. ("Fashion Firsts" excepted.)

Second you share in the savings that WE gained by buying early—many prices have advanced since.

Third you save (we don't know how much) by anticipating a further rise in wholesale prices later. (We are convinced that prices will advance.)

Jelleff's sincerely underwrites these saving advantages and to make them binding, should you later experience any doubt about your purchase, we offer free exchange at any time up to October 15th, for any coat in our stock, of course at the then prevailing prices.

Our collection of furs this year is the most magnificent one that we have ever assembled. True Jelleff quality and workmanship are reflected as always. High fashion furs occupy a more prominent place than ever before, and the classic styles that are always "good" are here in authentic versions. May we invite you to see our "Fur Show" of 1937? You'll be inspired, whether you're buying a coat this year or not.

Convenient Payments

may be arranged and your fur coat stored till Nov. 1st without charge.

with all the world, even with the man of whom he had so low an opinion as he had of his cousin.

They Discuss Philip.

"I'm sorry I've ever spoken a word to you against Philip. Ruth! John Pendervill was almost as absorbed in the art of the theater as she was herself. Indeed, it was that which had first brought them together."

"Understanding Silence."
"And now look here, Ruth! I give you my word that I won't speak of this matter again until you are ready to discuss it. Indeed, I shall be more than satisfied if you say you will think it over, and don't want to make any decision for a long while."

He was pitifully anxious, she could hear it in his voice, to be left with that sweet companion, hope.

"I don't know why you're so good to me," she murmured.

And then there came a strange and touching expression on his ugly face. "I am not good to you, Ruth. It's simply that I love you, and that I long above all things in the world to be able to prove my love."

There followed a long silence between the two of them, and suddenly, with a gesture which was inspired wholly by gratitude—and with that second sight love sometimes gives to a man—he knew that it was so—she thrust her hand through his arm, and pressed up closely to him.

"We are going on being friends, aren't we, just as if we hadn't had this talk?"

"Why, of course we're going on being friends! Indeed, if you like, we'll pretend I've never told you how much I love you. We'll go right back to where we were half an hour ago. I don't think I've ever been so happy before in my whole life as I was when you left your hand in mine—I mean before I'd said a word to you."

She said tremulously, "I felt very happy, too."

"Did you, Ruth? Did you?" There was such a note of passion in his voice that she suddenly grew afraid.

"Let's go back into the hall," she suggested in a shaky voice.

He sensed her change of mood, and was troubled by it.

"Let us stay out here for just a little longer," he asked pleadingly. "And then you must promise to tell me, when you've had enough of me!"

Ruth felt suddenly oppressed, and again she grew afraid. This was a new John Pendervill. No longer was he the easy-going, authoritative, and yet most kindly friend he had been till a short time ago. She made a determined effort to bring him back to their old terms of intimate, confiding friendship.

"I wish you thought better of Philip Trefane, John; I don't see how I can avoid going on being associated with him."

She looked at him with anxious eyes, and all at once he told himself that what she had just said might mean that she had suddenly made up her mind to be his wife. That possibility brought with it such an overwhelming flood of joy that for a moment he felt at charity

Nazi-Austrian Pact Is Hinted; Forestalls Otto

7-Point Program Prompted by Italy, Diplomatic Circles Believe.

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, July 9.—Germany and Austria, strongly prompted by Italy, have reached an extensive accord which would temporarily prevent a Hapsburg restoration, diplomatic quarters believed tonight.

Legitimists, however, were still keeping up a show of courage in face of a 7-point accord in principle worked out in negotiations between Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and Franz von Papen, German minister to Austria.

A source close to Italian and German diplomatic circles said the negotiations, now in the third week, almost broke down but after promptings by Italians the two nations were on substantial agreement on these seven points:

1. Nazi party ban in Austria to be continued.
2. National elements (friendly extension of Germany) not to be permitted influence.
3. National exponents to be included in Austrian cabinet not later than fall.
4. Germany's willingness to support all Austrian measures aimed at equality, which might, for example, include the building up of the Austrian army to 400,000 or 500,000 men.
5. Amnesty for persons convicted or in concentration camps for Nazi activity.
6. At least a part of Austrian Nazi refugees now in Germany to be allowed to return home unpunished.
7. Efforts at trade normalization including lifting of Germany's 1,000-mark visa requirements for Germans going to Austria. (This has hurt Austrian tourist trade.)

Fall Announcement.

Diplomatic circles stated no formal announcement of the accord was contemplated until fall.

Official quarters were maintaining strict silence and the regular foreign office press conference was canceled today.

Earlier today a spokesman for the Heimwehr (Home Guard) said Italy and Germany had reached an agreement concerning the Austrian situation, which, besides forestalling the restoration of the Archduke Otto for at least three years, included Germany's recognition of Italian independence for three years.

Officials today minimized the importance of the visit by Vice Chancellor Eduard Baar-Baarenfeld of Austria to Premier Julius Goebboes of Hungary at Budapest.

Some believed the mission was connected with German negotiations here.

Pact Cited.

Later the official news agency made something of a stir with an announcement that Baar-Baarenfeld discussed "important affairs" in Budapest concerning the Rome pact.

The pact, signed by Austria, Hungary and Italy, provides that no signatory can undertake a change in its foreign policy without permission of the other two nations.

Uneasiness grew in Heimwehr circles as leaders of the undisciplined private army voiced dissatisfaction with the trend of Austro-German negotiations.

Some Heimwehr officials interrupted their vacations to return to Vienna tonight, and Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, Vienna leader, was expected to return from Italy next Monday.

Leaders said the Heimwehr ranks feared their suppression of the Nazis in the 1934 putsch would prove wasted effort if German influence gained the least foothold.

Legitimists, also aroused, speeded up the courier service between Vienna and Steenokkezeel Castle in Belgium where the Archduke Otto lives.

Mrs. Owen Meets Fiance

Owen's son-in-law will attend Capt. Rohde.

The captain, who is a Kammerjunker, or gentleman in waiting on the King of Denmark, said he found New York "very beautiful."

It was the first trip to this country for the 42-year-old Danish officer. Mrs. Owen is 50.

Speculation over whether she would return to her diplomatic post next fall, after campaigning for the re-election of President Roosevelt, was revived by other passengers aboard the Drottningholm.

They quoted Capt. Rohde as saying he would take his bride back to Denmark in November as "Mrs. Rohde," a private citizen. Experts in protocol have hazarded the opinion that Mrs. Owen might retain her post at her own discretion, if President Roosevelt should not object. She declined to comment.

Fellow passengers pictured Capt. Rohde as a shy but charming man who excelled at deck games and dancing, and who at first denied the announcement of his engagement to Mrs. Owen when it was received over the ship's wireless Tuesday evening.

Later, however, he told them he first met Mrs. Owen when she presented her credentials at the Danish court in May, 1933, and that he planned to make her Mrs. Rohde.

Mrs. Owen said they had been engaged six months. She has been married twice before, her second husband having died in 1927, and is the mother of four children. Capt. Rohde is a bachelor.

A possible wedding guest was Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who talked this afternoon with Mrs. Owen at Mrs. Roosevelt's downtown New York office.

Mrs. Roosevelt said afterward she was keenly interested in meeting Capt. Rohde and looked forward to the wedding, but said she did not know where or when it would take place.

Officials of the Danish consulate here also said they were unaware of the wedding plans.

Approximately 185 fighting ships were sent into the sea at the height of the Ethiopian crisis. Since then, the strength has been slightly reduced.

Although there was no official announcement regarding those ships to remain in the Mediterranean, it was believed the fleet there would remain stronger than before the African war.

Britain Orders Mediterranean Fleet Reduced

Hoare Reveals Withdrawal, but Says Nation Is Increasing Navy.

By the Associated Press.

London, July 9.—Britain's first lord of the admiralty announced to Commons today the withdrawal of part of the greatest war fleet ever massed in the Mediterranean—but served notice the empire is hard at work building an even greater navy.

Even now, Sir Samuel Hoare told the members, the navy could put to sea immediately seven battleships and battle cruisers and raise steam for three more on short notice—if embroiled in war.

His words came on the heels of publication of supplementary defense estimates which brought the year's total funds for the army, navy and Royal air force to £187,870,000 (about $940,000,000).

The gravity with which Britain views the world panorama and its determination to rearm with the greatest possible speed were seen in the fact the estimates included the second supplementary provision in three months for the navy.

"The state of affairs is unprecedented in our history," the Evening Standard declared.

Sir Samuel's declaration regarding withdrawal from the Mediterranean of the home fleet, sent there to guard the imperial lifelines during the dangerous days of the Italo-Ethiopian War, was:

"It is proposed to release at a very early date those units which were sent there temporarily from the home stations and other stations abroad."

Approximately 185 fighting ships were sent into the sea at the height of the Ethiopian crisis. Since then, the strength has been slightly reduced.

Although there was no official announcement regarding those ships to remain in the Mediterranean, it was believed the fleet there would remain stronger than before the African war.

Gen. Glassford to Run For Seat in Congress

Phoenix, Ariz., July 9 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Felham D. Glassford, who retired from the Army in 1931 to take up farming in Arizona, announced today he would be a Democratic candidate for Congress.

Gen. Glassford formerly was chief of police at Washington, D. C. He was the ninth aspirant to enter the race to succeed Mrs. Isabella Greenway, who will not be a candidate for re-election.

U. S. Allocates $5,586 for D. C. Child Cripples

Services to Be Co-ordinated, Provide Aid for All Needing Treatment.

The Children's Bureau of the Labor Department yesterday announced it had approved payment of $5,586 in social security funds to match District expenditures for the aid of crippled children.

The money, officials said, will enable the Public Welfare Department to broaden its service to crippled children as forecast last week by Paul Kirby, acting welfare director.

Not only will new aids for crippled children be provided, but present services will be co-ordinated so that no crippled child need go without treatment and training even though he does not require hospital service.

The Works Progress Administration announced that for the week ending June 20 there were 12,797 persons employed in the District under the general works program. Of these, 7,884 were financed directly by WPA grants. Emergency conservation work took 2,322, while other relief agencies accounted for 2,781.

The WPA also announced that a total of $1,208,834 had been spent up to April 15 for materials, supplies and equipment on WPA projects in the District. Of this amount the WPA furnished $1,051,946 and the District or Federal agencies $156,888.

Aubrey Williams, deputy WPA administrator, stated that the employment load of the WPA has declined steadily since February 29, reaching 2,268,542 on June 20, the lowest point since large-scale operations began last November.

Nearly $500,000,000 had been returned directly to channels of industry and trade through the purchase of materials and supplies for WPA projects up to April 15, he said.

2 Bank Robbers Killed By Posse in Illinois

Decatur, Ill., July 9 (AP).—Two men who robbed the Scott State Bank at nearby Bethany of $1,000 this afternoon were shot to death by officers tonight on a dairy farm 5 miles southeast of Decatur.

The engaged a force of eight men led by Sheriff Emory Thronell for 15 minutes before rifle bullets and shotgun slugs ended their resistance.

C. W. Hinds, a Decatur policeman, was shot in the jaw in the fight, but not seriously injured.

Identity of the robbers was not established immediately.

Two Men, Woman Arrested in Raid

Two men and a woman were charged with operating a lottery yesterday when vice squad police raided an alleged "numbers" establishment in the 1100 block of Ninth street northwest.

Those arrested, Claude V. Reeves, 26, of the 1100 block Mount Olivet road northeast; his brother, Milton D. Reeves, 33, of the same address, and Catherine C. Carpenter, 33, of them.

the 900 block M street northwest were released on $1,500 bond. The vice squad, led by Sgt. George Deyoe, entered the place, operated under the guise of a newsstand and novelty shop, shortly after noon. Nearly 100 alleged "numbers" books and a quantity of slips were seized, along with several baseball pool charts and eight punch boards.

Lieut. George C. Little, chief of the vice squad, said a new type of "numbers" book was being used. They were printed as ordinary sales slips with the name of a bogus novelty shop printed on them.

Alley Income Of $250,000 Likely in '36

Annual Report Released
by Ihlder, Dwelling Authority Officer.

Negotiations Under Way for Property in Two More Squares.

The Alley Dwelling Authority expects to receive $250,000 from "sales, leases and other sources" during the fiscal year which began July 1, the annual report released yesterday by John Ihlder, the executive officer, shows.

Returns have already begun to come in from the authority's projects, partially or wholly completed since the launching of the alley clearance program in November, 1934, Ihlder said. He also announced the authority is now negotiating for property in two more squares.

Actual purchasing of property which began in May, 1935, already has resulted in the acquisition of sites in ten squares suitable for development.

Ihlder pointed out that there are almost 200 squares in the city which contain inhabited alleys and that the authority is given until July 1, 1936, to reclaim them. He said the estimated value of property occupied by alley dwellings is approximately $9,000,000.

Additional $200,000.

The clearance agency was given $500,000 with which to begin its work. Last December it was allocated an additional $200,000 from WPA funds, but $80,000 of that amount has been refunded.

The executive officer's report shows that on the properties the Authority has already purchased it has:

1. Built an automobile repair garage at Rupperts court, between Pennsylvania avenue, C. Second and Third streets southeast.

2. Built two groups of storage garages in Stanton Court, between L. M. Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets northwest, and in Brown's court, between A. B. Sixth and Seventh streets southeast.

3. Made an automobile parking lot in O'Brien court, between E. F. Twentieth and Twenty-first streets northeast.

Two Groups of Row Houses.

4. Started the erection of two groups of row houses in London court, between K. L. Twelfth and Thirteenth streets southeast.

5. Began the reconditioning of two other small groups of row houses in London court.

6. Contracted for erection of a group of storage garages in Douglas court, between A. B. Third and Fourth streets northeast. The garages are to be sold as a unit to the home owners on the surrounding streets.

7. Drafted plans for a low-rental apartment house to be sold to a limited-dividend corporation.

8. Started drafting of plans for another low-rental apartment house.

9. Sold a site for the erection of a hotel for the colored.

10. Sold a site for the use of a non-profit corporation.

11. Started negotiations for the sale of another site to a colored boys' club.

30 Per Cent Limit.

Ihlder pointed out in the report that the authority is limited to paying not more than 30 per cent above the assessed value.

In 12 squares the Authority found after it had begun negotiations that prices were too high and temporarily set aside those projects in favor of others that promised more prompt results.

Ihlder said it must be remembered that the alley clearance agency is confined in its operations to the old or built-up part of the city and that many of the properties it must acquire are in the hands of estates, are of doubtful ownership or have been tax delinquent for many years. Clear titles can be obtained in some cases only by condemnation suits.

The work of obtaining and developing property involves the use of all the money appropriated or allocated to the Authority except for a balance of $12,000, the report shows.

Members of Group.

Members of the group, in addition to Ihlder, are Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, Arno B. Cammerer, of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and A. R. Cias, PWA Housing director.

The Alley Dwelling Authority, an independent agency of the Federal Government, was created pursuant to the terms of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling act, first drafted in 1929 and sponsored in the Senate by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas. In the House of Representatives the sponsor was Mrs. Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee.

Children Ride When Adults Don't Show Up

Transit Company Gives a Trip to Prove Worth of Reconditioned Trams.

To be right frank about the whole thing, the children enjoyed the ride far more than the old folks would have.

In the first place it didn't cost anything and in the second place when kids are growing up with ambitions to be policemen and firemen and street car conductors, it's a lot of fun to clang the bell and not have anybody spank you for it.

That's what happened last night. The Capital Transit Co. has just imported some new street cars from Rhode Island. The cars are just 12 years old, which is still prime for a street car. They painted them and fixed them up until they run like new.

The company claims. Being very proud of its new street cars, the company last night invited people from civic associations to inspect their new cars and take a ride free of any charge.

But it happened that the sun tried to blister everything in sight yesterday and when sunset came it didn't get a bit cooler. The sun just set in a purple rage of heat and it kept on being hot. All the grown-up people stayed at home near electric fans and cold baths.

The street car officials waited and waited and nobody came except a lot of children. The children played all over the street car and had a lovely time inspecting the new machine.

The car stood still in the still hot air for an hour at Eleventh and Monroe streets northwest until everybody got pretty warm. There were 28 children and one mother and the conductor and another representative of the company.

So the conductor clanged the bell and took all the children for a ride down Eleventh street and then turned around and came back. It was very cool riding—probably cooler than some of the children had been all day.

The transit company enjoyed taking the children for a ride but it sincerely hopes, a spokesman said, that people—grown-up people—will come down tonight.

Carnival Includes Dog, Doll Contest

Two contests, one for girls and one chiefly though not exclusively for boys, were announced last night as new features added to the carnival of Our Lady of Victory Church opening Monday evening on the church grounds, Reservoir and Conduit roads. The announcement followed the final meeting of the carnival committee.

A doll contest opens Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. All entries will be accepted, provided only that they be brought by their owners to the carnival pavilion. No advance notice is necessary. Prizes will be awarded for the best-dressed and the most novel dolls.

Friday has been designated for the dog "popularity" contest, and it was announced it is to be strictly "amateur," with any canine of any description eligible. No entry notification is necessary. All that is needed is for the animal to be brought to the pavilion on a leash, at 8 o'clock. The custodian of the entrant will parade the animal and encourage it in any special performance to add to its popularity. Applause from the carnival-goers will determine the prize winner.

A chicken dinner is being served by ladies of the church on Wednesday and Thursday nights of the carnival, which will continue through Saturday.

D. C. Awaits 1938 Budget Draft Today

Donovan to Submit His Annual Forecast to Commissioners.

Rigid Economy Likely to Be Keynote; Units' Estimates Sought.

Auditor Daniel J. Donovan today will submit his annual budget forecast to the District Commissioners and ask that department heads submit their estimates for the fiscal year 1938 within the next few weeks.

Rigid economy is expected to be the keynote of the budget message in view of the anticipated $960,385 net revenue deficit at the end of the current fiscal year.

As Melvin C. Hazen, president of the board, is the only Commissioner still in the city, he will alone act upon the auditor's report and issue the budget call.

The 1937 District supply act carried approximately $43,500,000 in appropriations, the largest since the "prosperity era" bills of the 1921 and 1922 fiscal years.

While department heads will not be discouraged from setting forth their actual needs, according to Hazen, they will be warned to ask only for essentials.

The drafting of the 1938 budget, which must be submitted to the Bureau of the Budget in early fall, will be unusually difficult this year because of the uncertainty as to the size of the Federal contribution.

The commissioners expect to leave a wide margin between estimated expenditures and revenues for the next fiscal year to be filled in by Congress, either with a larger lump sum payment from the United States Treasury or with recent years or by additional District revenue to be raised through new taxation.

Maj. Donovan's report also is expected to deal with the problem of reducing overtime work through the service, as recommended by Congress and the Civil Service Commission. This, in most instances, will mean that the estimates will have to include requests for additional personnel.

In the departments of public welfare and fire protection the additions must be substantial if the hours of employment are to be brought down to the working week schedule recommended by the Civil Service Commission.

Rainbow Division Seeks Vote for D.C.

Nation-wide support of members of the Rainbow Division in the District Department of American Legion's fight to get the franchise for citizens of the district, will be sought at the eighteenth annual reunion of the division which will be held in Kansas City, Mo., for four days beginning July 12.

Manning Marcus, Washington attorney and honorary national president of the Rainbow Division, will lead the fight, it was announced yesterday.

The District Department of the Legion has long been a champion of the cause of votes for citizens of the District. It claims that the reasons which impelled the withholding of ballots of the District long since become inapplicable.

Gas Firms Seek Merger Approval

An application for Public Utilities Commission approval of the merger of the Washington Gas Light Company and the Georgetown Gas Light Company will be filed within the next week or ten days, Stoddard M. Stevens, Jr., of the New York firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, counsel for the Washington company, announced yesterday.

Stevens conferred during the afternoon with Richmond B. Keach, acting chairman of the commission, and People's Counsel William A. Roberts regarding the merger, authorized by an act of the Seventy-fourth Congress.

No change in personnel will be necessitated by the merger, but approximately $40,000 a year in taxes and accounting fees will be saved.

Ten From District Win Rifle Ratings

Ten reserve officers from the District of Columbia and nearby Maryland, now attending camp at Fort Howard, Md., have qualified for sharpshooter ratings.

The highest camp ratings were attained by Lieut. Edward H. Gibbs, of Riggs Mill, Md.; Lieut. Samuel Leishear and Noel O. Kastle, of this city.

Others qualifying as sharpshooters are Lieuts. Raymond Bartelme, George Sachs, Alton Sanford, Ervin Shupp and Harmon Pencer, of Washington; Warren Evans, of Bladensburg, Md., and Louis Flagg, of Takoma Park.

A special trainload of 190 nobles of Almas Temple left Washington last night for the sixty-third annual Imperial Council Session of the organization at Seattle, where they will honor Leonard P. Steuart, local man, who will preside over the meeting.

The convention will last three days beginning July 14. Steuart was elected imperial potentate of the Mystic Shrine of North America at its sessions here last June.

June Crowd 247,041 Visit City During Last Month.

June: the month of weddings and honeymoons, brought 247,041 visitors to Washington, according to figures released yesterday by the Smithsonian Institution.

Next to April, June led all other months so far this year in the number of visitors. More than 278,000 came to Washington during April. The figures are based on the number of visitors to the Smithsonian Institution.

Pinball Owners Granted Delay To Plan Protest

Whether pinball machines are games of skill and thus legal or are games of chance and therefore in violation of the District's anti-gaming laws may be threshed out in the courts Monday, it was announced last night after enforcement officials declared they would not molest the machines over the week-end.

This temporary stay included a condition that the machines be withheld from the public. The decision was made after attorneys representing operators of the games asked for time to consider what course of action they wished to take.

It was explained that owners of machines have invested large sums of money in purchasing them and that counsel wished to hold a conference with all owners and map plans for their future.

The court suit, if one is filed, will be in the nature of a suit to enjoin the threatened seizure of the machines by policemen operating on orders of United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett. The suit, it was expected, would contend the machines were games of skill and were being played for amusement only.

Another possibility is that the owners of the machines may leave one machine in operation, invite arrests and then settle the status of the machines in court.

Powder Puffs Cause Hay Fever, Doctor Says

Portland, Oreg., July 9 (AP)—Dr. Ray M. Balyeat, of the University of Oklahoma, today advised women afflicted with hay fever to shun most powder puffs.

Dr. Balyeat told the Pacific Northwest Medical Society that orris root, used to perfume many kinds of cosmetics, was "one of the commonest causes of hay fever and asthma."

Youth Pleads Guilty in Canon Extortion Case

Is Remanded to Jail and Will Be Sentenced by Court Today.

Pleading guilty to seven charges of extorting money from the Rev. Raymond L. Wolven, canon of the Washington Cathedral, Horace W. Richardson, 21, yesterday was remanded to District Jail by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue in District Court.

Justice O'Donoghue asked that the case be referred to the probation officer for a report today. It is planned to bring Richardson up for sentence today. He can receive seven separate sentences or can be given concurrent sentences. The minimum sentence would be from one to five years.

Samuel F. Beach, Assistant United States Attorney in charge of the prosecution, announced after the plea of guilty that the Government would drop the eighth charge in the indictment, which accused Richardson of robbery.

Disposal of the case within a few days of the return of the indictment was made possible when Richardson's attorney for the youth, informed Beach he would prefer to have his client sentenced now rather than force him to wait in the District Jail for an indefinite time.

The indictment charged Richardson with extorting approximately $275 from Mr. Wolven over a period of two years. Sums ranging from $10 to $75 were obtained from Mr. Wolven. Complaint to the police led to the arrest of Richardson and his indictment Monday, arraignment Tuesday, plea of guilty yesterday, and sentence today.

Boys Seized

Two boys, both under 13, were arrested in the vicinity of Griffith Stadium yesterday after Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen ordered a drive to break up the parking racket nuisance.

The boys, both colored, were arrested by Second Precinct Police. They were charged with soliciting parking and released to their parents to appear in Juvenile Court.

Hazen ordered the drive because several District officials have been the victims of the youthful racketeers, who watch cars for a small fee. The youngsters, if they do not get a tip, let the air out of tires and mar the finish of cars, the Commissioner said.

A similar drive was conducted several months ago and a number of boys and adults were arrested.

Army to Begin Coast Air Base This Summer

Rockwell Field Transfer to the Navy to Hasten,
$7,000,000 Project.

Erection by the Army of a $7,000,000 Pacific Coast air depot near Sacramento, Calif., to replace Rockwell Field, San Diego, which the Army has agreed to transfer to the Navy, is to be started before the end of the summer, it was learned yesterday.

The site for the new depot, which will service Army airplanes all along the West Coast and Hawaii, has already been selected and the land is being acquired. Funds for acquisition of the land and for the first year's construction expenses were provided in a grant of $400,000 included in the recent Army deficiency appropriation law.

The new depot is not one of the air defense bases contemplated by the Wilcox bill, but its need has been further emphasized by the impending transfer of Rockwell Field to the Navy. Air Corps officials explained. There are three other such depots, at Middletown, Pa.; Dayton, Ohio, and San Antonio, Tex.

The depot will have one of the largest landing fields in the country. There will be a three-block long main depot building, expected to cost $1,167,000; a $1,500,000 engineering shop, and a number of technical buildings, hangars, housing quarters and other facilities. The cost of the entire project is expected to total $7,000,000.

Stupidity and Detroit Tigers Overcome Nats in Slugfest, 10-7

Error Paves Way for Victory

Bluege Is Goat as Tigers Stage Five-Run Rally and Win in Ninth.

By Shirley Povich.

Sports Editor of The Post.

Washington lost a ball game yesterday with the temperature sizzling at 104 and a relentless sun beating down upon the athletes, but it wasn't so much the heat as the stupidity that sent the Nats down to defeat.

The Tigers won the ball game, 10 to 7, with the help of a stupid bit of play-by-all people—Ossie Bluege, the greatest infielder ever to wear the uniform of the Washington Club. Bluege tossed his blunder into the ninth inning, putting the Tigers in a position to score five runs and place the ball game beyond recall of the Nats.

Grabbing a ground ball off the bat of Ray Hayworth, and confronted with an easy out at first base, Bluege for some unexplainable reason chose to attempt a force play at second. He couldn't have shot the ball to Red Kress ahead of the runner had he used a rifle, but he tried it anyway, and an important out escaped the Nats. From that point, the Tigers went on to score four more runs before the inning was over, and boost their lead to the comfortable figures of 10-3.

Washington came up with four runs in their half of the inning, and with one out had the tying run at the plate, but Schoolboy Rowe who had been called in to relieve the swooning Joe Sullivan eventually retired Cliff Bolton and struck out Red Kress to seal the Tigers' victory.

It was some very inept pitching by Relief Pitchers Bill Dietrich and Syd Cohen, Dietrich particularly, that encouraged the Tigers to win the ball game.

Earl Whitehill, who had done tolerably well, was forced to leave the game by the extreme heat at the end of the sixth inning and Dietrich was entrusted with the game by Manager Harris as it stood tied at 3-3 at the start of the seventh.

Dietrich had considerable difficulty in getting the third Tiger out in the seventh. With two out, Sullivan, who began to pitch in the third when Ross Lawson was knocked out of the box, singled, and a rally was on. Burns singled to right, Rogell doubled to right, Lawson scoring on the hit and Burns scoring on Travis' wild throw back to the infield.

Dietrich walked Owen to start the ninth and then it was that Bluege made the wrong play on Hayworth's grounder, leaving all hands safe. With one out, Burns singled to right to score Owen, and with two out, Gehring drew a walk.

At this point, Cohen relieved Dietrich and walked Gehring to force in a run. He pitched a single to Walker that scored two more and then Goslin and Walker pulled a double steal. Goslin reached third and scored when Bolton's throw to nab him traveled into left field, and the figures now were 10-3.

Sullivan pitched two-hit ball for four innings before he came to grief in the ninth. The Nats needed

Jack Dempsey Sought As Ross Bout Referee

DEMPSEY.

Jack Dempsey, the old man mauler whose every appearance here has drawn record crowds, will be sought as referee in the bout between World

Welterweight Champion Barney Ross and District Welterweight Champion Phil Furr at Griffith Stadium July 22.

The District Boxing Commission has agreed to allow Jack to work the bout, not because he is any better referee than can be provided from the list of local arbiters, but simply because he has proved such a tremendous drawing card here.

Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn, who, with Promoter Joe Turner, arranged the outstanding bout for the benefit of the Summer Camp Fund for Underprivileged Children, sponsored by The Washington Post, will confer with Dempsey in Richmond today to seek his services.

"Perhaps Dempsey not only is a great drawing card, but also lucky for promoters," Ahearn reasons. "Anyway, he always has been associated with successful shows here."

"Dempsey first showed for me at the Riding and Hunt Club—and we turned away hundreds of people when the fire marshal called a halt to sales. Next, Dempsey refereed on the first police show—and the gate was in excess of $32,000.

Dempsey's last appearance here was on the Canzoneri-Klick card—and that drew more than $25,000. So, I guess we will try to get Dempsey just for luck, even though we don't need him to sell this fight."

Great interest in the bout is being indicated by numerous reservations already made even this far ahead of ring time.

Tickets probably will not be placed on sale until next Monday, but reservations are being accepted at Joe Turner's ticket office, Annapolis Hotel, Phone National 9220 or Metropolitan 3562 or at Goldie Ahearn's, Ninth and E streets northwest, phone Metropolitan 3567.

Ben Chapman Down and Out

Ben Chapman, Washington's new centerfielder, has just been tagged out by Detroit Catcher Hayworth as he slides toward home plate in yesterday's game at Griffith Stadium. Ben came to grief trying to score from second on Kuhl's single. Rightfielder Walker made the throw to Hayworth.

Bill Terry Ends His Playing Career

After Treatment to Knee, Says He'll Retire as Active Player.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, July 9.—Memphis Bill Terry, New York Giants' first baseman since the McGraw era, indicated today that his playing career is at an end.

Picking up the Giants for their game with the Cardinals here today, after receiving treatment for his ailing knee at Memphis, Terry said he probably will go on the voluntary retired list to make way for another active performer on the roster.

The Giants' manager did not say whether he would ever try a playing comeback, but he was certain that he will not be in action any more this season. By going on the retired list, it was believed he would replace himself on the active roster with a player who could assist Sam Leslie with the first-basing job.

On his visit to Memphis, where he went for treatment, giving up a chance to play in the All-Star game, he was advised by his physician, Dr. J. Spencer Speed, that an operation should be performed for the repair of a torn semi-lunar cartilage in his knee.

Lead League Batting.

He said today he will have the operation performed after the season ends, but he was not certain whether healing the knee would enable him to resume play.

Terry's last appearance for this season—and possibly for his entire career—was on June 26, when he played the first two innings of a game with the Cubs at the Polo Grounds. For much of the early part of this season, he led the National League in batting, until his knee ailment forced him to take only occasional turns at bat and at field.

He has been in organized baseball since 1914, except for a three-year lapse between 1918 and 1921. He came to the Giants in 1923 from Toledo, and soon afterward succeeded George Kelly on first base.

In June, 1932, he was named manager to succeed the late John McGraw.

In 1930 he won the National League batting championship with a mark of .401. For his 13-year major league career, he has an average of .342.

Ladies Day at Stadium, Newsom Faces Tigers

Buck Newsom, Washington's Sunday and Ladies' Day pitcher, will take the mound against the Tigers today in the second game of the current series. He will be seeking his eleventh pitching victory of the season, which has netted him seven defeats.

Newsom will be opposed by Vic Sorrell, bespectacled veteran of the Tigers' staff, who has been making an impressive comeback.

Cochrane Will Return To Tigers on July 15

Detroit, July 9 (P).—Walter O. Biggs, owner of the Detroit baseball team, definitely settled the question of Manager Mickey Cochrane's return to the club today.

The ailing manager, recovering in Wyoming after a nervous collapse, will rejoin the Tigers at New York in the midst of their "crucial" series starting July 15 with the league-leading Yankees.

Women Raise Passage to Olympics

Women Raise Passage to Olympics

Team of 14 Certain of Making Trip After Selling Badges.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 9.—The United States will be represented by a full women's track team and field team in the twelfth Olympics at Berlin despite the persistent Olympic fund crisis, it was indicated today at Olympic headquarters.

This change was effected by the women athletes themselves, who simply went out and started rolling money into the fund.

The girls raised the money by selling Olympic badges in the New York streets, by dunning public officials and asking the aid of newspapers.

Yesterday only five women were sure of going, but it was revealed today that the extra funds now becoming available have led Olympic officials to reserve 14 places for them on the Manhattan, which sails from New York Wednesday.

Nine Reach Quota.

Meanwhile, nine other teams had reached their quota, but six other were well below.

The teams sure of financing a full membership are the men's track and field, weight lifters, field hand ball, pentathlon, equestrian (already in Europe), yachting, boxing, wrestling and basketball.

The basketball team, lacking only a small amount, is making this up by driving through from Los Angeles and points in the Middle West.

The teams still lacking enough money are the men's and women's swimming, rowing, fencing, field hockey, canoeing, and gymnastics.

The Mayor of West New York, Frank Effert, today came to the support of the gymnasts. He contributed to their fund mainly to help Frank and Irma Hausbold, the only husband and wife combination eligible to represent the United States.

Fette, Hamlin, Foes In All-Star Battle

Milwaukee, July 9 (P).—Lou Fette, ace pitcher of the American Association this season, and Luke Hamlin, fireball right-hander, were named tonight as the starting pitchers in the third annual association All-Star game tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at Borchert Field.

Manager Donie Bush of Minneapolis, leading a troupe of stars against the league-pacing Brewers, nominated Fette, who recently was sold to the Boston Braves to report next season. Allan Sobotnik, who managed the All-Stars in two unsuccessful battles with Minneapolis, handed to Hamlin the task of stopping the hard-hitting array of performers in the All-Star lineup.

Welsh Reaches Jersey Tennis Semifinal

Parker, Riggs, Hall Also Advance in Tourney at Spring Lake.

By the Associated Press.

Spring Lake, N. J., July 9.—The four top-seeded players in the annual Spring Lake invitation tennis tournament, Frankie Parker, Robert Riggs, of Hollywood, Calif.; J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., and Barney Welsh, of Rockville, Md., gained the semifinals here today.

Welsh was the only one of the quartet to be taken to extra sets. Wayne Sabin formidable Hollywood boy, and doubles partner of Riggs, carried the National Public Party tittist to 3-6, 7-5, 6-4 before succumbing. It was the most grueling match of the day, played under a blistering sun as the temperature soared above 100.

Welsh will meet Parker tomorrow and Riggs will play Hall.

Parker, ranked seventh nationally and seeded No. 1 in the event which he has won three straight years, played steadily to overcome Gardner Mulloy, of Miami, Fla., Eastern intercollegiate champion, 6-2, 6-1.

Tom Markey and Hugh Lynch, of Washington, won a first-round doubles match by defeating Robert E. Anderson and B. Campbell, of Plainfield, N. J., 6-1, 6-4.

Riggs and Sabin won by default from Ernest Byfield, of Wallingford, Conn., and Ernest DeGray, of Brooklyn, and then defeated Charles Mattmann, of New York, and Alfred Jarvis, of Tenafly, 6-3, 6-4.

Bradley Spikes Rumor Ruth Will Pilot Tribe

Cleveland, Ohio, July 9.—Babe Ruth will not be brought here to manage the Cleveland Indians as long as the present owners retain control of the club.

This statement is based upon remarks made by President Alva

Bradley and other directors when the former home-run clouter was mentioned as a possible successor to Walter Johnson as manager of the Tribe last summer.

When asked about the rumor now in circulation, Mr. Bradley said tonight that he "had not changed his mind about Ruth."

"It's just another wild rumor," he said. "I have enough troubles to keep me occupied without taking on a new manager. I have no intention at the present time of replacing Steve O'Neill."

It was as thrilling a race as the course has seen in many a year—a real treat for the colorful crowd. And while the race went on, spectators, picked at random along the banks, made the taste test.

SMOOTH IN ACTION... as Vintage White Owl is in taste. White Owl's Vintage taste scored again... three out of every four men thought it tasted better. Men seem to like the mildness of Vintage tobacco.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 22—Another victory for the rich, mellow flavor of Vintage tobacco. The mildness of this smooth-flavored tobacco has made it the favorite of millions.

At Poughkeepsie's famous intercollegiate regatta, 232 smokers were picked at random from the spectators... given two unidentified cigars—a Vintage White Owl and another, representing the leading nationally advertised brands.

The cigars bore no names or familiar bands to prejudice them. Each man smoked both cigars, then indicated the one he liked best. They chose by taste alone... for taste is the only thing that really makes for smoking pleasure. 76% preferred Vintage White Owl's mildness.

Garrett's Girls Miss Symphony to Victory at Charles Town

Filly Scores Easily in Feature

Pays Mutual of $21.20;
Daily Double Worth
Only $10.60.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., July 9.—Miss Symphony, an underrated filly, and Leon Garrett, an under-rated jockey, teamed to race away with the Shepherdstown Register purse, the top spot of today's turf program here in the mountain. Given little chance in the important investments made under the stands, Miss Symphony gained sweet revenge by showing her rear hoofs to six others in the best over the Charles Town course. When pay-off time arrived, they hung up a $21.20 mutual.

It was by a margin of a length and a half that Miss Symphony led Lady Windsor to the imaginary wire. Another length away came Hogarty, 11-year-old, to take the third money. Red Label, in the role of a 2-1 favorite, was sixth.

Equals Track Record.
Adriatic, winner of the second race, equalled the track record for the 4 1/2 furlong course. The gelded son of Oceanic carried 115 pounds and ran the route in 49.3-5 to match the time of Energetic Lady and Tiltan Kiddle.

Adriatic supplied the first half of a $1000 daily double which was completed by Dressmaker. Both horses were favorites and the double was the shortest of the meeting.

Summer weather prevailed here today but a crowd of some 4,500 was in the stands. Betting was above the average and cold drinks were going like hot cakes all afternoon.

Two horses, Mary Wales and Forest Paul, were left at the post in the running of the William H. Kirkwood purse, the day's secondary feature, which was won by Pretty Lass.

Wheat Prices Resume Rise In Late Trades

Wide Damage to Canadian Crops Responsible for 2 1/2-Cent Advance.

Chicago, July 9.—Swiftly moving upward in price late today, wheat rose 2 1/2 cents above early bottom levels and regained market leadership that was lost temporarily to corn.

Bulges of wheat values at Winnipeg were largely responsible for renewal of strength here. Authoritative estimates were current that 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 acres of Canadian wheat are in grave danger from prolonged drought and abnormal heat, with a great portion of this acreage already far gone. Drought period gains of wheat prices now total approximately 20 cents a bushel.

Wheat closed nervous, 1/4-1/2 cents above yesterday's finish: July, 1.06 1/2; September, 1.06 1/2; December, 1.07 1/2. Corn at 1 1/4 decline to 1 1/4; July, 81 1/2; September, 78 1/2; December, 75 1/2. Oats unchanged to 1/2 higher; September, 37 1/2, and rye, 1/2-1/4 up; September, 71 1/2. The outcome in provisions varied from 2 cents setback to a gain of 10 cents.

When James A. Farley goes on payless leave of absence as Postmaster General on August 1, and William W. Howes, first assistant, takes his place, Jesse M. Donaldson, Deputy First Assistant Postmaster General, moves up into Howes' job, thereby becoming the ranking civil service employee in the Postoffice Department.

But that will not be his only distinction, for it means that he is one of the highest career men in Government service. His rise to high office sounds almost like one of those stories boys like to dream over—the sort of thing that occupies them while they wash the dinner dishes and think how they will spurn the job when they land in the White House.

Donaldson, a native of Shelbyville, Ill., received his first post-office appointment in 1903 when he was made clerk in the fourth-class office of Hanson, a little village of that State. Then in 1908 he became a letter carrier in his home town and after a year of ringing door bells and delivering mail, he was transferred to a clerical position.

Donaldson got his first glimpse of Washington the following year when he came here in the Adjutant General's office in the War Department, but soon went back to his home State to the Sparta postoffice. Then he was shifted to Muskogee, Okla., as superintendent of the postoffice there and, during the World War, became a postoffice inspector, working in various parts of the country.

He came to Washington again just three years ago as Deputy Assistant Postmaster General from a job as inspector in charge of the Chattanooga division, where he had postoffice matters in three States under his supervision.

In April of this year Vincent C. Burke, Deputy First Assistant Postmaster General, left that job to become postmaster for the District, and Donaldson succeeded him.

The newest job in his more than 30 years of postoffice experience which he will begin on August 1 does not mean any advance in pay, but, like Howes, he will serve in the temporary capacity at his present salary. Donaldson has served in every branch of the postal service.

He's not a stamp collector, as many in the postoffice service are, and he admits he plays a better game of bridge than golf, although he gets out with his clubs whenever he has a chance.

Another prominent employee of the department, Smith W. Purdum, the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, is a career man. His service of 40 or 45 years made him the ranking civil service man in the department until Donaldson's temporary appointment put him one peg higher.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces it will accept applications not later than July 27 for the following named positions:

Photographer, various grades and branches, $1,200 to $2,600 a year. Lithographic and topographic draftsmen various grades, $1,620 to $2,600 a year.

Inspector and assistant inspector of scales and weighing, $2,000 to $2,600 a year, Bureau of Animal Industry, Department of Agriculture.

Yesterday's heat did not deter an earnest group of Thespians who met as the thermometer raced upwards during the afternoon and formed the drama society of the Welfare Association of the Resettlement Administration.

A committee was appointed to look over the play market for suitable vehicle for the amateur group and the ideal of the society is to make their Little Theater group second to none in Washington. A questionnaire was sent to all divisions of the Administration to see how many were interested in such a group and 149 responded to Maxine Mitchell, who has been guiding the pre-formation activities. Election of officers will take place at the next meeting of the group.

CCC camps, the Federal Employment Bureau and the FERA were discussed last night at the second meeting of the school on the New Deal which the Democratic Women's National Council is running at the All States Hotel. The classes have many Government employee students who want to know what's what around the town under the Roosevelt Administration. Mrs. Louise Lazell, who last winter lectured to the wives of members of Congress, is repeating her course on how the different Government agencies function.

Kenneth F. Rogers, of the International Bureau of the Postoffice Department, and Ernest G. Dodge, of the Civil Service Commission, have just returned to their jobs from a strange world. They have been attending the annual national convention of the Esperanto Association of North America where the delegates talk Esperanto, the international language.

Whether Esperanto was the language used for the occasion, we do not know, but Rogers was appointed assistant secretary of the association at the convention. Both he and Dodge are active in the Washington branch of the association which boasts about 50 members, many of whom are Government employees.

Closed Bank Pays $3,465,900 of Loan

The receiver's quarterly report of the closed Commercial National Bank shows that the bank has paid $3,465,900 of its Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan of $4,316,000.

Made public yesterday by the receiver, Robert C. Baldwin, the report estimates that for the period ending June 30 the value of remaining assets stands at $1,918,429. Cost of liquidation was fixed at $219,801.84. The sum $408,214.23 was collected from interest, premiums, rents and other resources.

Since the bank closed, February 28, 1933, depositors have received dividends of $3,260,135.75, representing 60 per cent of their original accounts. Total assets at the time of the bank's closing were $14,754,877.56.

2 District Osteopaths Are Chosen Delegates

Two Washington osteopaths were chosen members of the house of delegates to the fortieth convention of the American Osteopathic Association, to be held in New York for five days, beginning July 20. The two Washington doctors are Dr. Chester D. Swope, Farragut Medical Building, delegate, and Ardeshir B. Iranl, 409 Colorado Building, assistant delegate.

VACATION EXTRAS VIA THE

"Old Gold and Silver Exchange"

Does that perfect vacation seem a little hard to arrange? Perhaps your vacation budget just—and no more than—reaches a happy balance, not enough to include extras. Extras are what The Hecht Co. means when suggesting a visit to the "Old Gold and Silver Exchange." It is a very easy way of getting that ravishing beach coat, that extra pair of white flannels, or that unexpected taxi fare.

Just look around the house for such small but valuable things as dental gold, watches, cuff links, sterling silverware, eyeglass frames—you will receive cash for them immediately.
